1976 is the year for the great celebration. Not only is it the year of our country's birthday, but it's the twentieth birthday of another super tradition—North Central. Add to that everyone's personal birthday, and you'll find that this really is a year worth celebrating!

Clockwise from left: Chaos breaks out in the boys' locker room as football team members celebrate their victory over then number two state-ranked Lawrence Central.

A roll of streamers tucked under her chin, Senior Sheri Gates decorates for a surprise party.

One of Eagle Creek's duck residents applauds the fishy catch of a friend.

High jumper Denise LaRue fires up the crowd as she leads cheers for the year's first pep session.

Preheat oven to 1976 degrees. Take a few good ideas, countless imaginative Patriots, and 13 colonies and mix well for one Revolution. Let simmer for 200 years in a large melting pot. Combine this mixture with baseball, hot dogs, and Mom's apple pie, as well as voices, young and old, rising in unison to proudly say the Pledge of Allegiance. Tint red, white, and blue and put into a baking dish large enough to accommodate 50 states. Bake until July 4. When done, garnish with stars and stripes. A sure crowd-pleaser, this can be served to taxi drivers and executives, teachers and students. Just call it America.

High on the Continental Divide, Peta Peterson, George Fryer and Pete Meginnis survey the vista from the top of Crystal Light Mountain.

Gay Nineties Night at Frontier Ranch finds nine happy cowgirls at a spaghetti dinner and square dance.

A huge 20 x 30 foot American flag, borrowed from Dan Young Chevrolet sets the stage for the Descants rendition of God Bless America in the Spring Fine Arts Festival.

Calmly balancing an apple on top of her head, April, a weimaraner puppy, makes it easy to understand why, in America at least, a dog is a man's best friend.

A rocky Colorado mountainside is reflected in Dream Lake in Rocky Mountain National Park.

Baseball is All-American sport—but so is chewing bubble gum. Hal Gaalema keeps his eyes on the ball.

Snapped on an overcast day, the Capitol Building in Washington DC is an ever-popular stop on any tour.

Long before anyone had even heard of North Central, the 8400 block of Westfield was nothing but a farmer's field. By 1954, someone came up with the idea of building a school on the site, and since then construction has rarely stopped.

Over the years they've built two different North Centrals—the first opening in '55 and the second in '64. And at every opening, they had—guess what?—another celebration.

Aren't you glad we don't have to fit 3700 students in this vintage 1840 schoolhouse, now at Conner Prairie Farm?

"Let's hear it from the Seniors, WIN, WIN!" Members of other classes feign inattention while waiting for their turn in the cheer at a fall pep session.

Would you believe that this is how it all began? Many dignitaries were present at groundbreaking ceremonies in 1954.

Drivers' Ed cars are visible on their lots in this aerial shot taken in the summer of '74. Since then, the park and some baseball diamonds have been built.

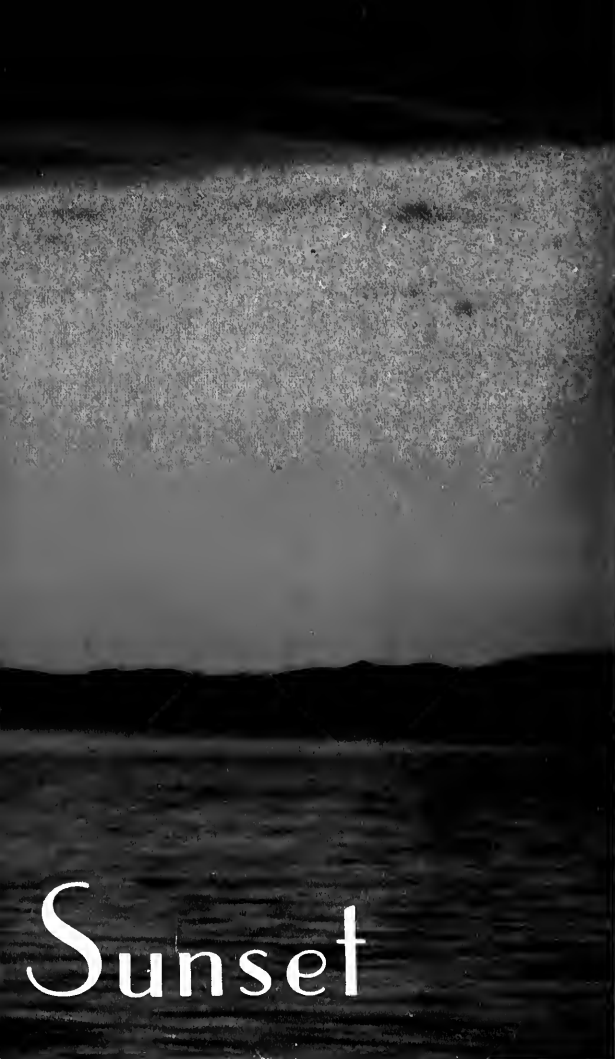

Carefully fitting the cornerstone in its place, workmen add finishing touches to the first North Central as students of the "future" look on.

Do you ever wonder what happens to old cars like the '53 Pontiac, '55 Chevy, and '54 Dodge parked outside "North Central" in this old picture?

Sunrise,

Sunset

We started out with a lot of things worth celebrating—our country, our school, and our individual birthdays. As each crucial year passes, the US will count its people, NC its graduates, and individuals their wrinkles. And each birthday will be significant.

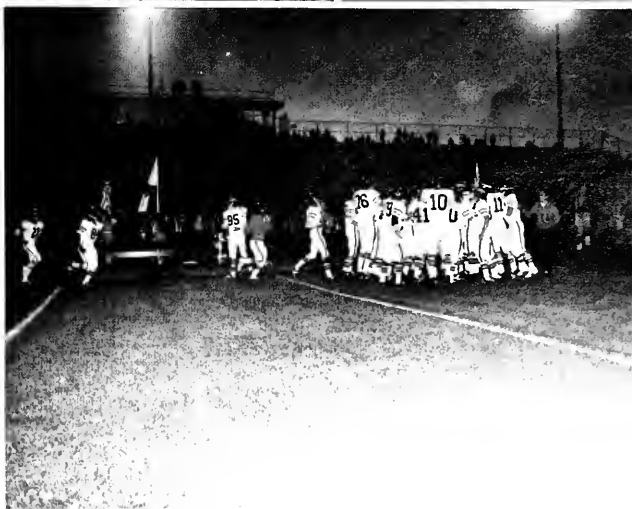

Ironically, some abstract things don't have birthdays. But like life's continuation and the daily sunset, they still call for a celebration.

Peckerwood, a Southern plantation, was the setting for this scene from the Spring musical, Mame.

"Don't forget to stop and smell the" . . . wildflowers. These can be found growing just about everywhere from August on.

Another sunset—this one over North Central—outlines fans in the stands as players come on the field following halftime in the Broad Ripple game.

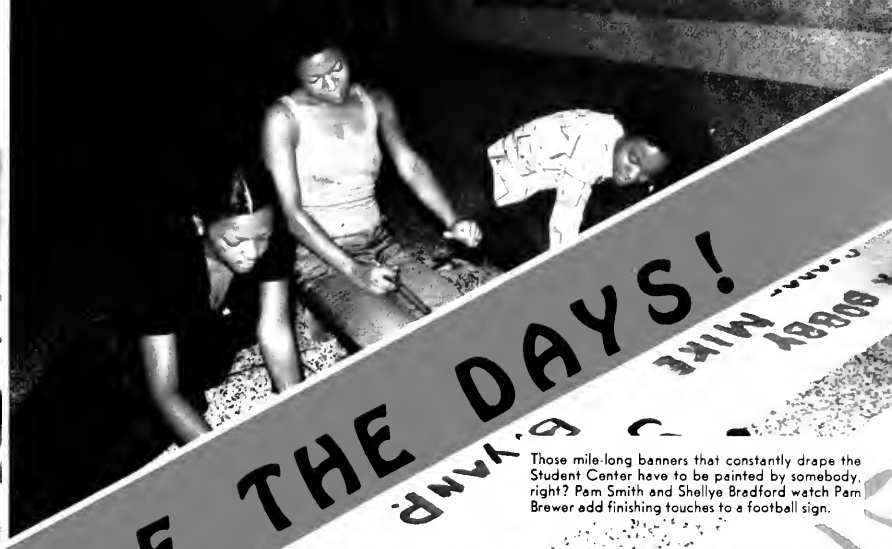

A sunny day makes the hood of a car an ideal place for napping or studying, as Sandy Stover and Amy Welsh demonstrate.

my friends ...

Beauty Kay Pashos reclines on England's celebrated Brighton Beach while abroad last summer with People-to-People.

Pop Day is a traditional part of every student's life during that magical spring semester.

THESE ARE THE DAYS!

Those mile-long banners that constantly drape the Student Center have to be painted by somebody, right? Pam Smith and Shellye Bradford watch Pam Brewer add finishing touches to a football sign.

Ready for the big event, Dave Watts, Bill Hamilton, Jeff Schaefer and Mickey Bolanos pose for the traditional scrapbook pictures.

Escaping the hot Coliseum, Barb Palmer and Bill Tait appear relieved the whole thing is over.

Make room you guys, warns Gayla Henderson, or else I'll sit down right here!

As Wendy Rabin looks on, Bloor Redding "hams it up" at the Eagle Creek picnic.

If by chance you should come to school one day only to find that all the Seniors have on formals and tuxes, don't worry, it's not that they were too tired to change after the dance—it's Senior dress-up day. On another occasion you may think they are all going trick-or-treating a little early this year but it's only Senior Slop day. This is when you may see a few gorillas, a couple of frogs, and who knows what else. Mr. Walker even dares to dress differently for once in the year!

Masses of unusual students squeeze thru the student center on Senior Slop Day.

Soaking up the sun and surveying the "chicks" is Joe Zurschmiede, sharing a blanket with Amy Nickel.

SENIOR 75 DAZE

Finding out what togetherness is all about are Mary Beth Oblinger and Peg Stamper.

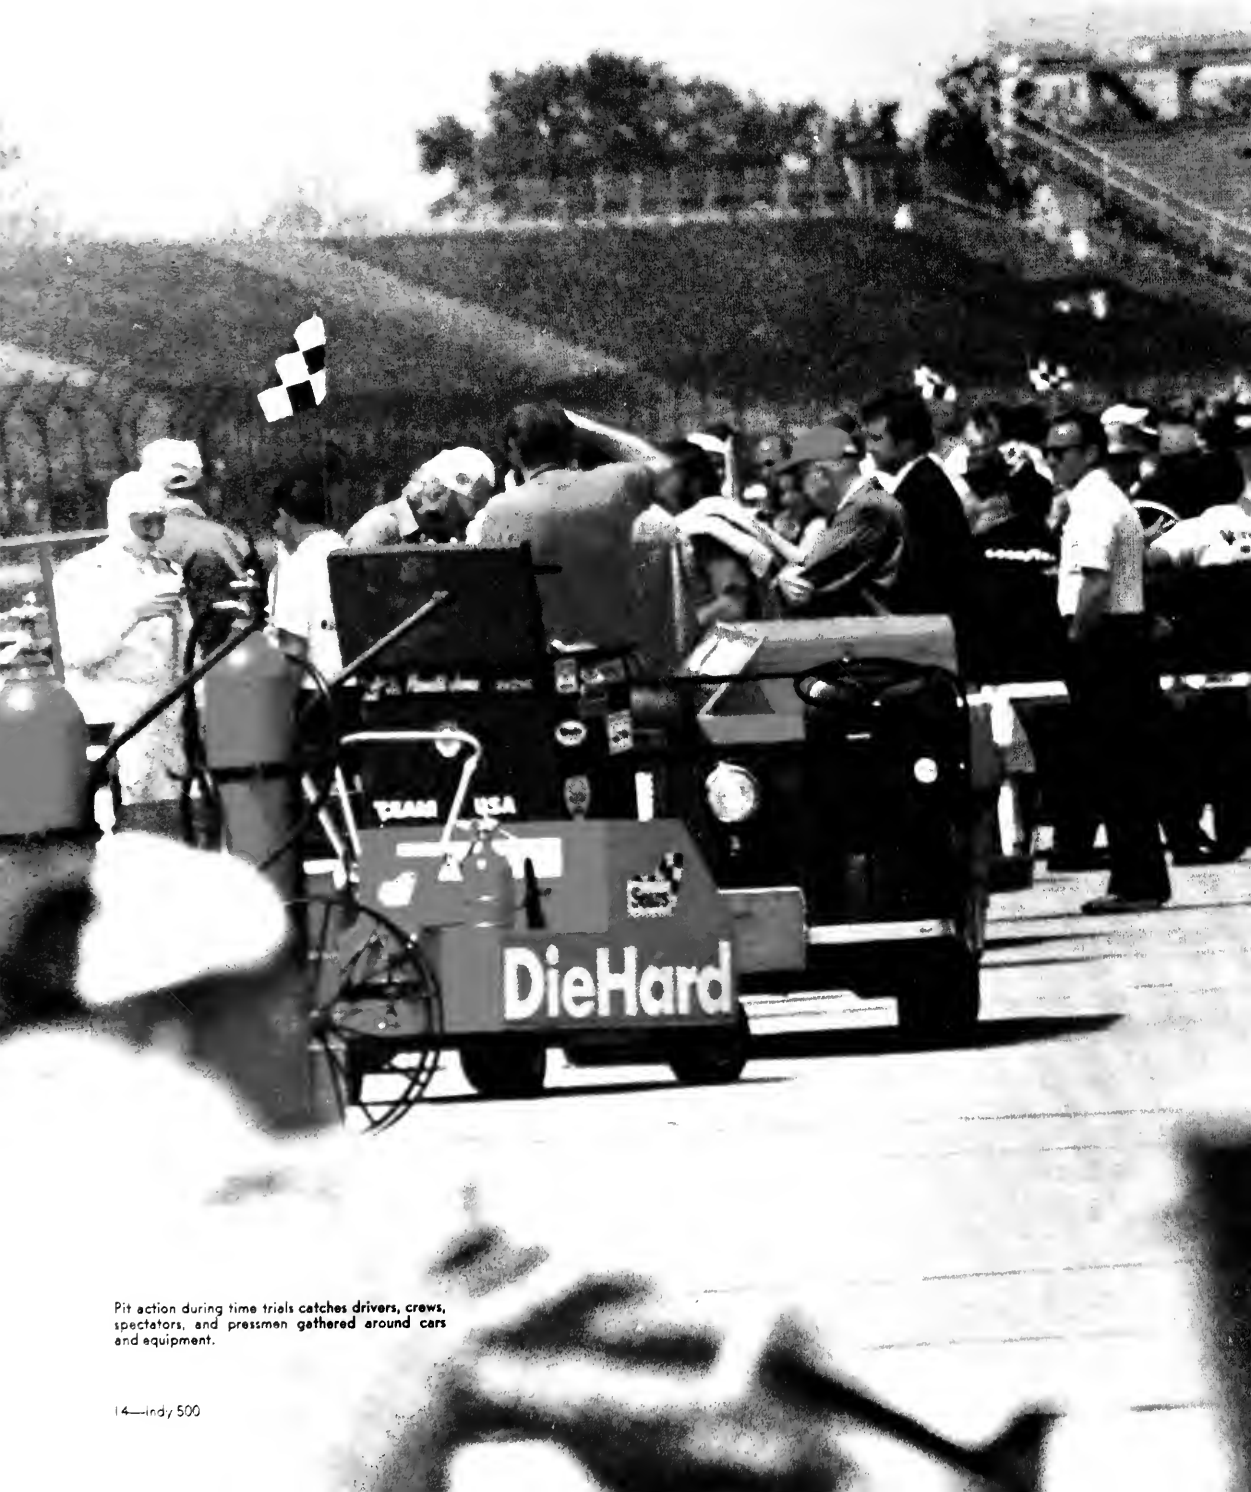

GI Joe, alias Dave Manning, looks ready to attack any unsuspecting student.

Diploma finally in hand, Larry Hall heads back to his seat.

Two sheiks calmly survey the situation in the Student Center on Slop Day.

Pit action during time trials catches drivers, crews, spectators, and pressmen gathered around cars and equipment.

One of the thousands of race fans happily points out something she likes at one of the numerous souvenir stands.

Seemingly unconcerned with the race, many spectators spend the day simply talking and relaxing.

"Oh yeah, the race!" is what a lot of people find themselves saying about halfway through that "big day in May." Maybe they even go to the track intending to really watch the race this year, but once again, as soon as friends get together—especially in the infield where everybody seems to be, the partying begins. From then on, the race is usually a lost cause. True, a few kids will stroll on over to the track to see what's going on every once in a while, and listen to the radio reports of what's happening, but that's about it. Not that it's not worth it to actually go to the track because one of the great things about it is the relaxed and uninhibited mood of practically everybody. Besides being a fantastic place to have a good time, if it's a sunny day, they can even get a start on a tan!

WHAT RACE ?

As he tensely awaits the start of the race, Johnny Parson's face shows a grim determination.

Everybody needs a job, right? Well, that's what most NC students seem to think—at least a summer job, anyway—to take up some spare time and make a little extra money. And you might be surprised at what all that money is used for! College, a new car (or any car), and new clothes are, of course, the usual reasons for saving money, but some put the money to a completely different use. For instance, how many people save their money to spend in Iran?, or Mexico?, or to buy a canoe?, or even to buy new stamps for their collections? But even with all these tempting and sometimes exotic ways to spend that hard-earned money, the most popular ways still seem to be just having fun!

Mop in hand, Laura Widduck cleans up after a long days work at Orange Julius.

COLLEGE, CAR, CLOTHES

With a satisfied look on her face, Missy Shackleton arranges a back-to-school display at The Sycamore Shop.

At Hot Sam's, pretzels, pretzels, and more pretzels are what Joy Brinkman sells all day long.

Ready with the key to solve his problems, Sears employee Nancy Everett assists Curt Neff.

IN THE MOOD?

How many times a day do you hear it? "I'm not in the mood!", "Wow, I feel great today!", or "Gee, what a rotten day!" On any day at North Central, you're bound to hear at least one of those. Moods affect how all of us act—some more than others. Fights with friends or parents or flunking a test can throw us down in the dump as fast as a compliment or a good grade can give us a lift. So if you're in a thoughtful, quiet mood today, or if you feel a little rowdy, or anywhere in between, don't worry, it's perfectly normal.

Absorbed in conversation, these two spent a quiet Saturday afternoon in the park.

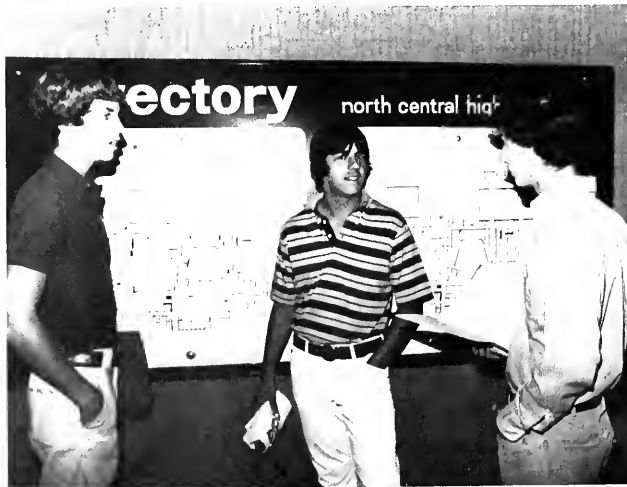

Crazy moods sometimes inspire Senior Parker Lanier to behave a little differently than usual.

Checking out this year's cafeteria food brings varied reactions!

Refreshing their memories as to what's where, Juniors John Rapp, Brian Heckart, and Rick MacGill meet before a class.

"Now if I can only find the class that started ten minutes ago. I'll be all set." Although nobody will admit to saying it, everybody's heard something like that during the first days (or weeks?), of school. Really, though, it isn't that bad getting back into the swing of things—even the sophomores adjust quickly. After the hundreds of screwed-up schedules are finally figured out, everything settles down to routine again, and students start thinking about next year . . .

HERE WE GO AGAIN!

Patiently awaiting their turn for help, students have mixed feelings about starting school.

A quick stop at the mirror assures Junior Cindy Cantrell that she looks O K for her next class.

For help in figuring out his mixed-up schedule, Senior Dave Brown asks Mr. Cloncs for assistance.

Warren's Warriors are put up their pole by the Junior class' Panthers.

Raising spirit for the game, faculty members display their talents in a skit.

A peppy crowd gives the team moral support by standing and cheering.

"Well, here we are back at the good old football field again. I guess it'll probably never look any different." The returning alumni sigh and look around themselves to refresh their memories and look for other friends home from college or whatever they've been doing. When familiar faces are seen, everybody gets together and the conversation switches to "remembering." Pretty soon all the games, bonfires, mixers, and parties are remembered and some kind of wish they were back at NC—just for a weekend to relive those happy days.

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!

As they drift along in the parade, Music Men continue singing while enjoying the view.

Minor problems like losing a tire don't seem to upset Senior Homecoming King Dave Scofield, as he prepares to try it again.

With determined looks on their faces, wagon team members tensely await the race's start.

SMILES

Haven't you noticed that there's a certain time of year when everybody is a little happier; when people are a little more generous and giving; and when they smile a little more often? It's just something about December that generates "that holiday feeling." With decorations almost everywhere you look, it's hard not to get in the spirit! From the huge tree of lights on the circle to Santa Claus out at Castleton to the spinning of the dreydl, more smiling faces are seen.

At the Eagle Creek German picnic, Russ Johnson tries out his volleyball skills.

You caught me! A shopper in a jovial mood is surprised while pretending to try on pants a few sizes too small.

Just feelin' good, these two head home after a good day.

Sometimes, if you're feeling glum, it's surprising how little it takes to brighten up your day. At school, a special surprise from your secret pal can do it. An unexpected "A" on a test can bring a smile to your face as well. And when you walk into class and see a substitute teacher on the very day you thought you couldn't stand the usual everyday lecture again—well, it's a great feeling. Working on a favorite hobby can give you a feeling of happiness and satisfaction, too. It's those small, everyday thing that make you feel like you're on top of the world.

With lots of enthusiasm, the crowd cheers our latest goal.

on top of the world

Completely absorbed in his hobby, Brad Sawyer puts the finishing touches on a model airplane.

Peesssst! Hey, You...

Come here. Have I about everybody's your school, so in the cold. Most celebration of the 200th birthday, but enthusiasm of those it from red, white, and blue anything: cars,

T-shirts, ROTC minutemen uniforms, parades, and even red, white, and blueberry ice cream!

Just think "patriotic" and you've got it . . .

THE SPIRIT OF '76!

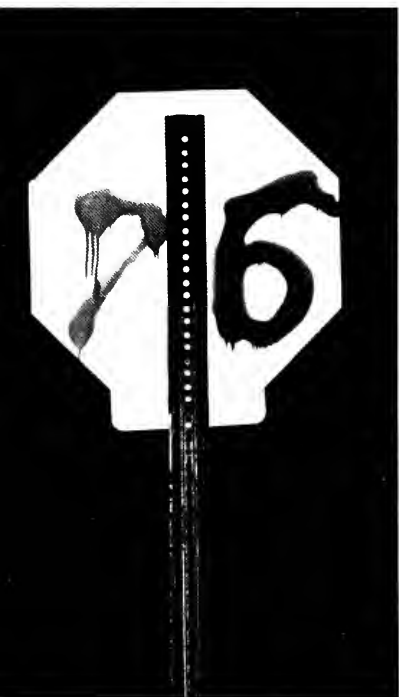

Free Spirit? The Spirit of '76? They're both the same when driving to school in this red, white, and blue auto.

Even though Ben Franklin preferred the turkey as our national bird, the eagle won out and now appears on money and the National Seal.

The 1976 license plates proclaim Indiana as the "Heritage State." Liz Hackl and Katie Foy install their new one.

Even stop signs get into the spirit of things when overexuberant paint-slingers invade the area.

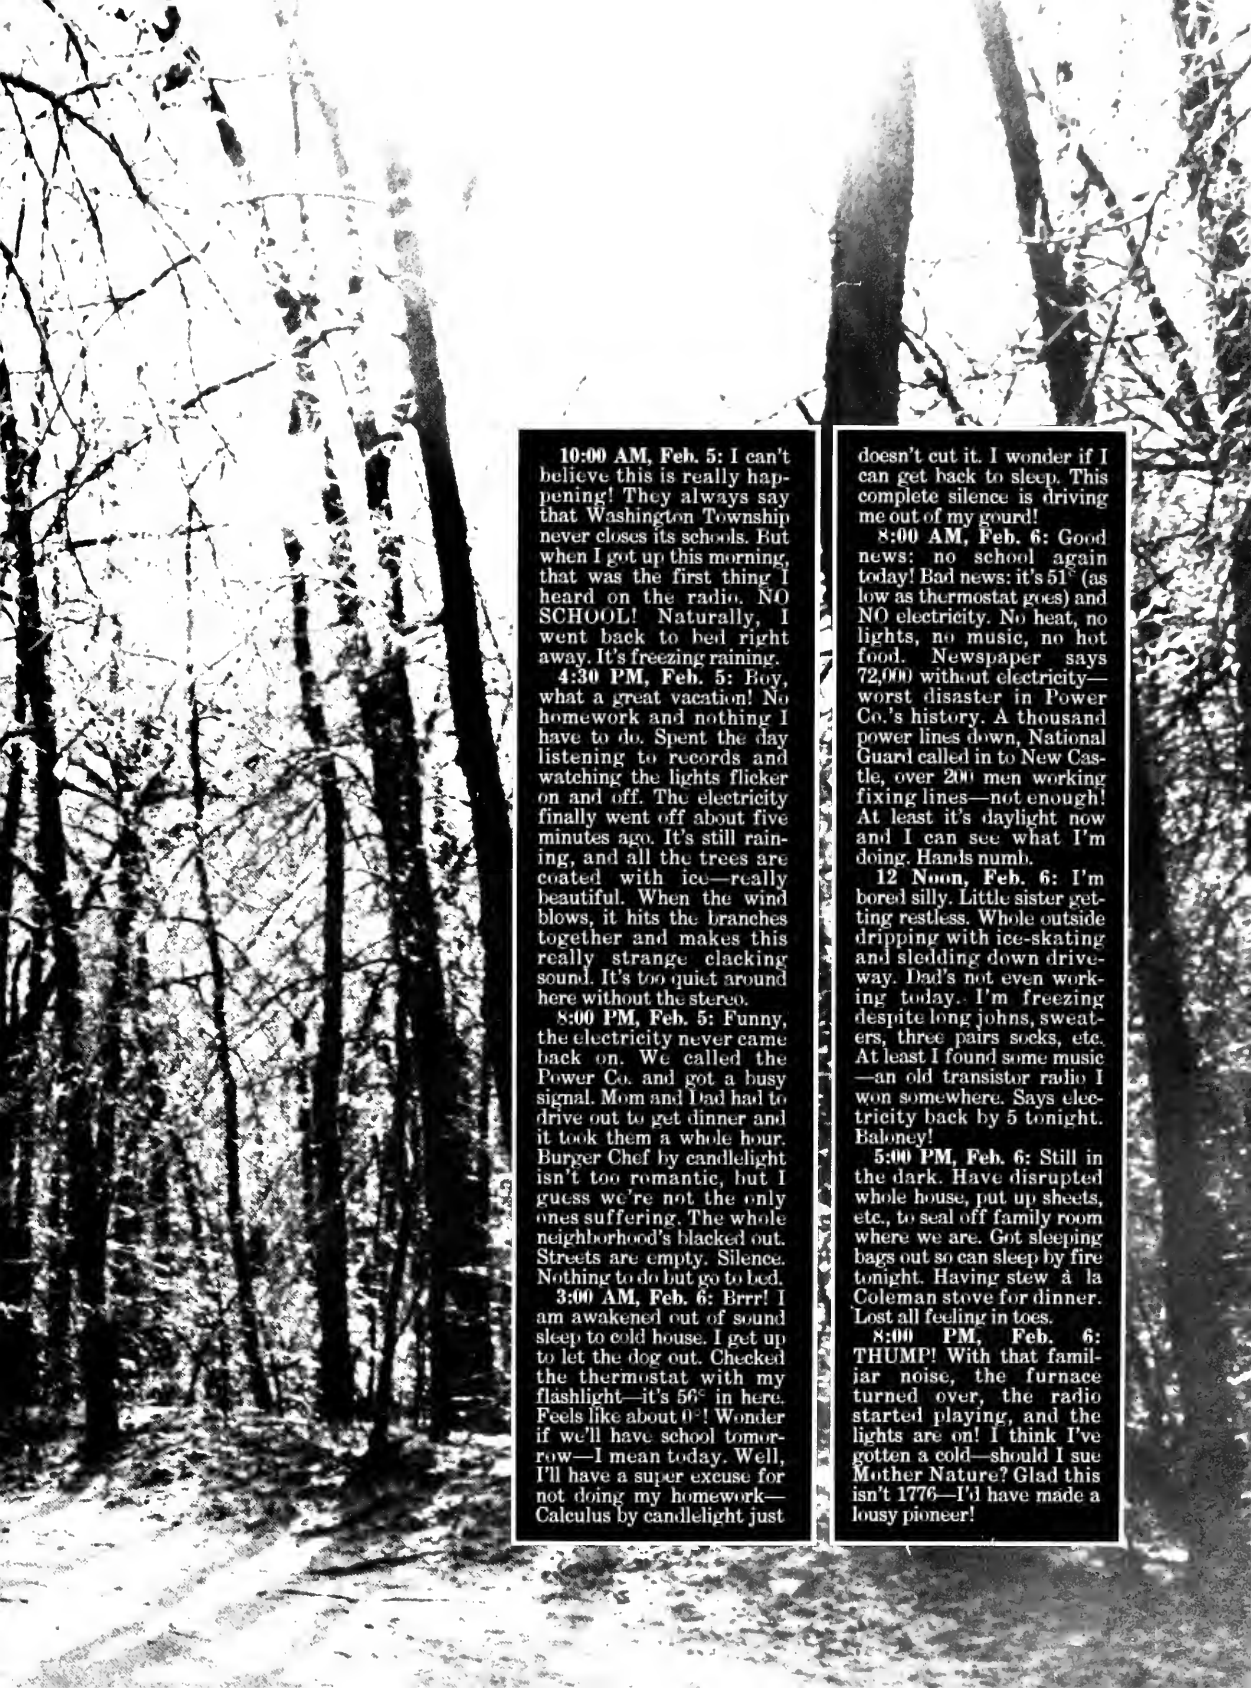

Anyone eating at the cafeteria during this Bicentennial year was met with red, white, and blue decorations and cheerful cafeteria workers.

The Washington Township logo, designed by Mark Kippert, found its way to a special edition folder; Cheryl Jordan buys hers from Bob Wille. More on the logo is on pages 36 and 37.

THE NIGHT THE LIGHTS WENT OUT

10:00 AM, Feb. 5: I can't believe this is really happening! They always say that Washington Township never closes its schools. But when I got up this morning, that was the first thing I heard on the radio. NO SCHOOL! Naturally, I went back to bed right away. It's freezing raining.

4:30 PM, Feb. 5: Boy, what a great vacation! No homework and nothing I have to do. Spent the day listening to records and watching the lights flicker on and off. The electricity finally went off about five minutes ago. It's still raining, and all the trees are coated with ice—really beautiful. When the wind blows, it hits the branches together and makes this really strange clacking sound. It's too quiet around here without the stereo.

8:00 PM, Feb. 5: Funny, the electricity never came back on. We called the Power Co. and got a busy signal. Mom and Dad had to drive out to get dinner and it took them a whole hour. Burger Chef by candlelight isn't too romantic, but I guess we're not the only ones suffering. The whole neighborhood's blacked out. Streets are empty. Silence. Nothing to do but go to bed.

3:00 AM, Feb. 6: Brrr! I am awakened out of sound sleep to cold house. I get up to let the dog out. Checked the thermostat with my flashlight—it's 56° in here. Feels like about 0°! Wonder if we'll have school tomorrow—I mean today. Well, I'll have a super excuse for not doing my homework—Calculus by candlelight just doesn't cut it. I wonder if I can get back to sleep. This complete silence is driving me out of my gourd!

8:00 AM, Feb. 6: Good news: no school again today! Bad news: it's 51° (as low as thermostat goes) and NO electricity. No heat, no lights, no music, no hot food. Newspaper says 72,000 without electricity—worst disaster in Power Co.'s history. A thousand power lines down, National Guard called in to New Castle, over 200 men working fixing lines—not enough! At least it's daylight now and I can see what I'm doing. Hands numb.

12 Noon, Feb. 6: I'm bored silly. Little sister getting restless. Whole outside dripping with ice-skating and sledding down driveway. Dad's not even working today. I'm freezing despite long johns, sweaters, three pairs socks, etc. At least I found some music—an old transistor radio I won somewhere. Says electricity back by 5 tonight. Baloney!

5:00 PM, Feb. 6: Still in the dark. Have disrupted whole house, put up sheets, etc., to seal off family room where we are. Got sleeping bags out so can sleep by fire tonight. Having stew à la Coleman stove for dinner. Lost all feeling in toes.

8:00 PM, Feb. 6: THUMP! With that familiar noise, the furnace turned over, the radio started playing, and the lights are on! I think I've gotten a cold—should I sue Mother Nature? Glad this isn't 1776—I'd have made a lousy pioneer!

Dreams turn into reality for Senior Chip Gilmer as he finally gets his ice cream sandwich.

OH, THAT IRRESISTIBLE URGE!

Have you ever been sitting in class when suddenly you have just got to have an ice cream sandwich? Or you're at the big football playoffs and out of nowhere you feel you will die without chocolate? Or it is semester exam week and you are trying to pass your chemistry test but you think you'll scream if you don't have a pickle? Many students at NC have experienced such incidents. No matter what we each like, we all have these frequent, strange little cravings that we have to learn to live with.

Temptation gets the better of Senior Leanne Drennan as she munches hungrily on the leftovers from lunch.

Oftentimes the urge to talk on the telephone is difficult to resist.

The desire to smash a photographer right in the lens is hard to control for Senior Alan Berkowitz.

Although she appears to be studying a government book, Senior Marla Barnett can't tear herself away from a current love story.

Vroom, vroom! Obviously, Senior Kent Mason would rather be whizzing along on his motorcycle than sitting in class.

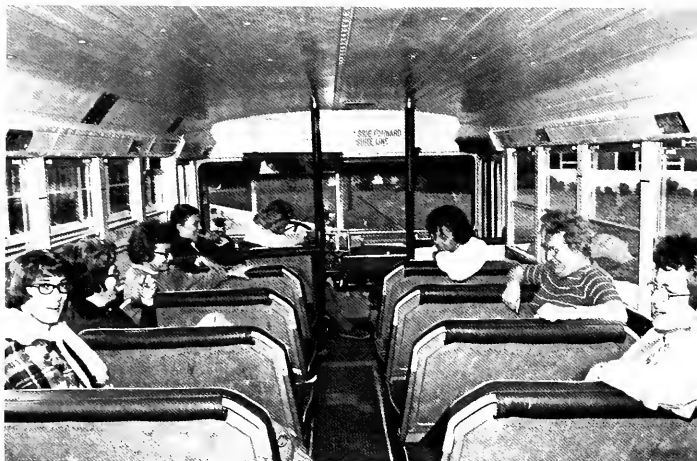

And they make us ride to school in these?!

Relaxing before the flood of students, bus drivers enjoy the best part of their day.

THEY'RE COMING TO TAKE US AWAY!

Yes, it's really true; elves do clean up the buses every night.

After a long, hard day at school, students start to let out their feelings before the ride home.

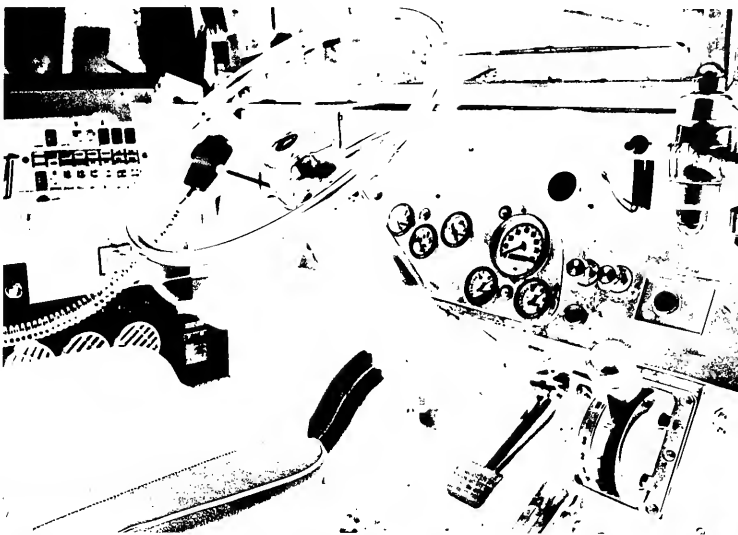

Try to imagine getting used to this in driver's ed.

It takes control to be a bus driver!

"Oh no, it can't be here already!" "And I haven't even eaten breakfast yet!" "Now where did I put my shoes?" "I'm not ready!" Almost everybody has gone through mornings like this. Even the super-organized people sometimes fall behind in their morning schedules. The bus always seems to come early on those days when nothing's going right. But, like it or not, the bus is sometimes the only way to school. And whatever you haven't had time to do—home-work, putting on make-up, eating—gets finished on the bus.

Relieved that another day of school is over, Sophomore Dane Morrison wearily boards his bus.

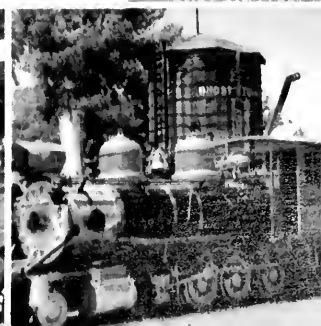

Look familiar? It should. You will see this symbol on everything from school programs to stationery. And you probably didn't even know that it was designed by a former (75 grad) NC student! Yep, this design won over all the other entries from Washington Township. That's what M.S.D. stands for—Metropolitan School District of Washington Township. Of course, the 1776 and 1976 stand for our country's bicentennial, and that one room schoolhouse represents the 200 years of progress in our school system. If you noticed, there are even 13 stars which symbolize the original 13 colonies. So, from now on whenever you see this sign, you'll recognize it and better understand what it means.

IT ALL HAS MEANING

Letting the football players go first in the dinner line made the other guests at the banquet a little nervous; however there was plenty of food for all. A Greek Connection—the theme of the banquet added a light, humorous touch to the seriousness of thanking those involved during the season, and the handing out of awards. What a sight to see two ruff-and-tuff seniors doing a Greek dance with Coach Pappas. After the cheerleaders led the Panther fight song, the mood changed to a more serious note. Each player, reserve and varsity, was introduced and the coaching staff thanked. Awards were presented, with Coach Pappas ending the banquet with a speech for the Seniors leaving and the returning players for next year.

Of course, every other sport has a banquet to give awards, too. They're the perfect way to say THANKS to all.

OUR OWN GREEK CONNECTION

A lighter side of the banquet included participation in a traditional Greek dance.

Guests at the banquet, including friends, families, and boosters in addition to players and coaches, feasted on fried chicken and other delights.

"N-O-T-H-I-N-G, that's what Bears means to me . . ." Varsity cheerleaders and Panther John Parthenheimer inspire spirits with a favorite cheer.

"All eyes on the ball," well, almost all eyes, seems to be true of the reserve cheerleaders at the Shelbyville game, won by NC.

Guests of honor, football team members were the first ones through the food line. After all, it takes a lot of fuel to power the Panthers!

Yes, the "Men in the Moon is a Lady," but Cleanne Reynolds as Mame has a little trouble manning her post.

After a day spent pounding the halls, a relaxing conversation while seated on the benches outside the Health Center may be just what the doctor orders.

LONG WAY- MAYBE

We sure have come quite a way from the one room schoolhouse of 200 years ago. The facilities have improved a great deal—no more splinters from wooden benches. And a ten mile venture to school is hardly the same nowadays with all the modern conveniences—like windshield wipers—to help out. Those may have been 200 long years, but the changes which have come about make the wait well worth it!

, ; ' . ? ! - : () By the time one graduates from North Central, hopefully he or she should know how to correctly use all of these marks. Whether you are going to be an engineer, a psychologist, a teacher, or even if you plan to spend your life traveling around the world, everyone will have to know how to express themselves clearly in their writing. In classes such as English composition, students learn to do just that. Besides the mechanical part of English, students have a chance to read current plays and novels about unusual people in different parts of the country.

If you would like to visit South America or the Orient without having to leave North Central, you should enroll in the Latin American and Asian studies classes. These are just two out of many electives one can take besides the usual history courses that are required. Other interesting electives include: psychology, Russian history, and cadet teaching.

Even 200 years ago there were all kinds of figures around. Some of these figures are used in science and math. These courses do take much brainwork but can be a bunch of fun.

Math isn't the same as it was then. Now it involves working on computers that even talk back to students, for example: "Hello Don't be nervous ." At least a person won't get lonely this way.

Science classes still work with formulas or in the lab with gases, acids and all sorts of things. Not only is there a learning atmosphere but also the idea of having a good time.

If you're still in the locker room without your sneakers and socks on and you hear the first whistle blow to get into your squad, you had better hustle. Don't get too worried though, gym classes are not bad at all. As a matter of fact, they can be a lot of fun.

Everyone needs exercise and gym provides this for students. It also changes the pace of day from sitting around in hard chairs to running, swimming or whatever event may be taking place.

This year at NC, an athletic organization has begun called the FCA, or Fellowship of Christian Athletes. If you're a young man looking for fellowship, you should go to a FCA meeting where you might find a guest speaker, movie, or maybe a discussion.

So next time don't complain about taking gym but remember this class has helped to keep North Central's students and athletes in good shape.

Proud service of community and country is exemplified by the JROTC philosophy as members prepare to serve with safe rifle practice

As I walked through the door that first Wednesday morning I wondered what it was going to be like wearing my uniform to school. I knew I really looked nice, and I had confidence in myself. I was proud to be wearing the uniform of the Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps. It was one of the rare moments in my life when I knew I stood out in a crowd. I could feel people staring at me everywhere I went, and it brought a great sense of satisfaction to me. The longer I was at school the prouder I became. I held my head higher and higher, and I stood up straighter and straighter. It was hard to fight off a huge grin during my classes; it was something that surged up within me and I just couldn't hold it back. Each time I passed a mirror in the hall I had to take a nonchalant glance at myself . . . I was beautiful! My imagination was running wild with all the things I was sure I could do while wearing that outfit. Yes, I could leap tall buildings with a single bound; I was President of the United States; and I envisioned my irresistible self with sexy creatures crawling all over me. (Of course I kept my composure!) The biggest thrill was standing at attention for the Pledge of Allegiance. I was covered from head to toe with goose bumps, and my spine tingled with chills. It was such a shame to have to go home and take off my uniform, because with it went my ambition, my pride, my confidence, my irresistibility, even my stupid grin . . . my dream was now back in the closet for another week.

Wednesday is uniform day for JROTC, but for Tom Haynes it is also a day to display the medals he has earned.

Contrary to popular belief, JROTC isn't all marching outside the stadium and parking duty at athletic events; it requires hours of study.

The view down the barrel of a shotgun isn't a pleasant one; gun safety is part of the JROTC program.

At the annual OEA carwash, students work extremely hard to make this Volkswagen clean and shiny.

Have you been wondering what you're going to do the rest of your life? Wouldn't it be exciting to know? Well, some North Central students have already decided. They have the basic information needed for a business career.

If you have thought that business was only sitting around typing and taking dictation, you were wrong. Students can take a three hour secretarial and clerical course that will help them get a good, well-paying job. Many people are fascinated by computers. Here at NC there is a course in computing where you can satisfy your curiosity. These and many other courses will also help in preparing students for college.

Many people are looking for involvement and at the career center there are two organizations looking for people. OEA, Office Education Association, not only does office work but also holds car washes, skating parties, and picnics. DECA, Distributive Education Association, is part of the market merchandising course, which can teach you how to manage a store.

Guys as well as girls are planning for a business future. So next time you have an appointment don't be surprised if you see a male secretary.

It's finally the last form letter of the day to fill out for Paula Hottinger, and this time it's even in triplicate.

While constructing power sources, Tom Horn and Doug Yaryan sometimes wonder if Edison began this way.

STAY TUNED

"Lights, Camera, Action!" These are just some of the terms one might hear at a visit to the Radio-Television classes at the Career Center. This year radio station WJEL, broadcasting from the Career Center, received its license from the FCC. It broadcasts news, weather, sports, and music.

Those students enrolled in Electronics class soon discover that there is more to electronics than just flying a kite. Students study amplification, electric currents, and the many other uses of electricity. They learn just how dependent our modern world has become on electricity.

Not the National Football League, but the National Forensic League, better known as the speech team, had a winning year. Receiving high awards at New Castle, Kokomo, Logansport, Warren, Lawrence, and other meets, members not only discovered the early-morning stars from a bus departing at 5:45 A.M., but made friends, won ribbons, did the morning announcements, and even partied once in a while.

Quick recall and memory are vital to Exercise in Knowledge team members. An all-male panel met every week to prepare for upcoming competition. Repeated wins characterized their televised appearances.

It's shocking to discover that the mysterious "Voice from Above" heard each morning comes from mortals like Richie Allen.

Legend has it that a mysterious woman once appeared to an eager alternative ed student while he was visiting at Cocky Locky. As she was leaving, she said, "You should have a new name for the announcements which come from the ceiling above." And so it was that the strange announcements heard each morning in the alternative ed rooms were named "The Voice from Above."

Soon after "The Voice from Above" got underway, strange things began to take place beneath the surface of this alternative ed program. Eventually, a newspaper emerged from within called "The Voice from Below." The paper warns its readers to remember where this name came from.

Learning Unlimited, also known as the Big Sky Training Company, offers students infinite opportunities in education. A person can set his own goals and his own pace for attaining these goals. He may choose his methods of educating himself. This individualized form of learning is set up with the cooperation of students, parents, and teachers. The program is not ideal for everyone. A great deal of self-discipline and responsibility is needed on the student's part. Those who are interested in being a part of Learning Unlimited are carefully interviewed, and conferences are set up with their parents. Family cooperation plays an important role in the success of the program.

The entire program functions as a sort of community. Members are separated into family groups which meet each week. Teachers and students are on first name terms. In a democratic fashion, town meetings are also held weekly. All of this keeps a meaningful sense of unity within the program and makes it a success.

IT'S A BIG SKY

Serious planning is necessary in setting up student curriculum. Greg Meyers and Laurel Wille discuss project objectives.

One method of presenting what a student has learned is through oral presentation. Ivan Stillerman seems to be at a loss for words.

Back for an encore, the "Panther Post" makes its second appearance just before Valentine's Day for the delivery of carnations.

FROM WASHINGTON - TO STILLERMAN...

"Ivan Washington" . . . the name has a certain ring to it! What is it exactly that links these names together so well?

Some similarity must exist between these two people. There doesn't seem to be any resemblance in their outward appearances . . . Can you imagine Ivan wearing a ruffled shirt or a curly white wig? (And if so, imagine him still being elected president!) Somehow it seems hard to picture George Washington addressing the Continental Congress while dressed in a pair of Levi's and a work shirt. Ivan Stillerman is hardly the six feet and two inch image of George Washington, but as some well versed intellectual once said, "The best things come in small packages . . ."

Most students agree that this year's Student Council has accomplished a great deal in improving our school. It seems students have always been somewhat skeptical about the effectiveness of student government. This year students have been surrounded by projects originated within the council: the homecoming festivities, the new "Panther Post" with its Christmas cards and Valentine carnations, convocations, carpool sign-ups, movies, shopping week, the book drive, the paperback bookstore, the annual talent show, the film festival—Ivan and the council must have done something right! So, "Ivan Washington" should not sound odd unless you prefer "George Stillerman."

STAFF GERMS

Carefully handling all type and artwork, ads editor Julie Talbot designs advertisements for that section of the yearbook.

An epidemic of staff infection has broken out in the yearbook office. The disease was first discovered in nine staff members upon their return from a week long journalism workshop this summer at Ball State University.

Experts say that the infection stems from sleepless nights spent working on copy, layout and captions for the '76 Northerner. Other probable causes include too many pizzas followed by hilly elevator rides and a slight frostbite acquired in the chilling lecture room.

Staff germs spread so fast that the entire clan of editors, photographers and assistants carried the disease throughout the year. To its victims, the malady is commonly referred to as "TGATBS" or "the Gospel According to Ball State."

Camera always close at hand, photographer Danny Epstein is ready to take pictures of whatever excitement develops.

Beaming with delight, editor-in-chief Darby Dyar shows her layout idea for pages 276 and 277 to editors Sue Uhl and Pam Hamilton.

Clothed in wagon race t-shirts, the Northerner staff demonstrates their school spirit as they display their balloon-covered car at Homecoming.

Organization is extremely necessary in the production of the Northerner. Sue Uhl refers to her notes to check on a rule.

Representing Rod's Rambunctious Rollers, Bill Roman and Marcia Webster steer on to a fourth place finish in the wagon race.

Concentration is expressed on the face of Robin Lewis as she cuts out type to set a headline for a spread in the sports section.

A modern day replica of Washington crossing the Delaware, photographers Jeff Fisher, Rick Kearney and John Porteous waded in a golf course pond.

The cabinet holds a menagerie of yearbooks which Becky Alford uses to inspire her creative ability.

Drawing a layout on a triplicate, academics editor Susie Fogle prepares a spread for mailing to the printer.

Anxious to see the final copy of an article, Joe Perkins quickly types as editor Bill Roman supervises.

Pesty photographers can be a pain when you're concentrating on something. News reporter Randy Martin glares into a bothersome camera.

Dear Editors:

To the editors of the Northern Lights:

Many of you and possibly all of you have been uneasy about the fact that we are writing copy for the yearbook about the newspaper. We can easily understand your worries and concerns, as you may feel that we will be partial and non-objective in our approach. We have taken your concerns into account, while also realizing that we owe it to our readers to reveal the truth no matter whom it may hurt or whatever high place he or she may occupy. To this end, we feel that we have done our best in preparing the following copy.

Sincerely yours,

*Bill Roman
Russ Johnson*

Guilty of writing the copy on this page, Russ Johnson and Bill Roman work together on a layout for the sports page.

"In reviewing this year's newspaper it is only natural that our attention be focused on page four. This year's sports page featured many interesting articles, consistently outstanding layouts, and a fine array of photoengravings. Personalities included, page four takes the proverbial cake.

To the contrary, little or nothing in the way of work has been put into the other pages. Each issue has revealed the parsimoniousness of the 'editors' of these pages when it comes to creative effort. Meanwhile, the sports page has taken great pride in its unending spirit of diligence, dedication, sacrifice, perseverance, character, and consanguinity among men which have clearly made it the consummate page of the Northern Lights.

This rose among the ashes, this shining star in the dark sky, this prize in a box of Crackerjacks, this cathedral in the graveyard proves that only great men make great things."

Hamming it up in the print shop, Curt Arnott and Bob Pike pretend to be busy printing an issue of the Northern Lights.

In the hope that the feature page has returned from the print shop without an error, editor Tracie Munro carefully reviews each article.

Even though being an editor is a rough job, Marcia Webster seems to be enjoying herself while working on a yearbook spread.

There are many different ways of using your head and some are pretty good. One way that has really proven a benefit to some students is by working hard at school. The kids who belong to the National Honor Society not only are brainy, but they participate in fun things like tutoring fellow students or working with the exchange program.

If you have enough time, energy, and brainpower to be an editor for one year, then you can become a member of Quill and Scroll which is an honor society for people involved in journalism.

Instead of sitting in class as a student you can switch roles by becoming a cadet teacher, which lets you share your knowledge with others. So next time you have nothing to do, make use of what's in your head.

Whether it's about chemistry, calculus, or girls, the president of the National Honor Society, Mike Wenning, is always willing to talk.

Why that isn't a North Central teacher but rather it is Steve Lave, a cadet teacher, who is always willing to help a young lady.

THAT'S THE WAY TO USE YOUR HEAD

It is finally time to erase the last French lesson of the day and cadet teacher Betsy Manifold is sure glad about that!

"Can it, you guys!" Believe it or not, Key Club members aren't being impolite or even rude when this becomes their slogan each Christmas season. The Can Drive, a long-time tradition, pits class against class to collect cans of food and money for the needy in Washington Township. This year's goal of 25,000 cans was only short a few cans. Key Club's duties don't stop there, however. Members sort cans every day for two weeks after the drive ends. A homecoming float and aftergame mixer were also planned.

Christmas is also a busy time for Lockets. Members usher children at Santa's House and help patients at LaRue Carter

When mid-day hunger pangs strike, even the Can Drive must wait until Kelly Queissar can satisfy his cravings.

Hospital wrap their children's presents. "Babysitting" is an important school project. Faculty members may bring their children to school on the night of the faculty dinner, and Lockets will babysit.

Triangle Club members put out the North Central Message.

A December Locketts' meeting finds Joyce Meredith with a lot on her mind. Perhaps she's thinking about Santa's house or the Swimathon, both important club projects.

Newly-elected Key Club president Dick Fraije calls order to a mid-year meeting. Meeting on Thursdays, members planned a mixer as well as their successful Can Drive.

T-shirts are a unique part of the identity of Locketts. Here, members collect and count money from those who want them.

The Spirit of...

It's difficult being a Sophomore Class Council member, but Robbe West and Betsy Shanks found that a step ladder can make their job easier.

Unpacking and sorting holiday decorations for the student center requires a bit of concentration from Wendy Sommers.

High ponytails and slicked back hair were typical at the "'77 Bop"—an affair to raise cans for the annual can drive.

'77 is the best, we're the class that beats the rest! Especially when cruisin' Pop's Soda Shop with slicked back hair and bobby socks! Nostalgia . . . "Put 'Em Up Their Pole!" "Red Hots," Spec and . . . JUNIOR PROM!

'78 . . . we're the class with-out a yell . . . but with spirit—holiday spirit! Valentine's Dance, Christmas decorations . . . Choosing CLASS RINGS!

Art work is usually not completed in a hurry. Dave Sherron takes time to figure out his lettering design for an industrial arts class.

Easy to follow directions: Paint 1's blue, 2's red, 3's green, and 4's black. North Central has a fine art department and students enrolled in many of the advanced art courses have a talent far beyond that required by "paint by number." Students' creations of sculpture, ceramics, weaving, and silvercrafts are included in the Spring Arts Festival.

Have you ever hit your thumb instead of a nail? Well, industrial arts classes might give you that chance. Seriously, students in industrial arts classes are involved in many fields of study other than simply wood. These fields include: drafting, furniture making, power mechanics, metals, presswork, and the use of tools.

Home Economics is a course you can get your teeth into. Students learn to prepare foreign foods as well as how to meet the needs of a family.

In ceramics class, Stacy Harrington takes a breather from working on her vase and accepts a little assistance from her instructor, Mr. Howell.

These proud cooks are anxious to try their lasagna. Kathy Bowe wants the first taste!

The worse part about cooking, as Lynette Vincent could tell you, is cleaning up the big mess you have made.

Work done for Industrial Arts classes requires preciseness. Deborah Ward works carefully on a lettering assignment.

Students have a chance to express their creativity in art classes. Gwyn O'Leary designs a coil pot.

SPIRIT COMMITTEE BREAKS INTO LOCKERS

Bang! A deafening explosion rings out in the almost empty halls before school. A few startled teachers pop out of their doors, only to find that someone blew a little too much air into a balloon, and it burst in her face! In most instances, this person is on the verge of hyperventilation as she stands surrounded by the 50 balloons she has blown up in the last 30 seconds.

This same girl has come to school on numerous occasions before sunrise to decorate athlete's lockers. She has spent plenty of hours after school painting banners and making decorations. This is not to mention all the paint flinging and the days spent decorating the player's bedrooms before a game.

Who is this mysterious female? She's a member of a pep club, School Spirit Committee of a sneaky Panther Pal!

Before the opening of school, basketball players Todd Ponder, Dave Evans and Duane Dye help promote spirit by painting signs for the football team.

Sneaking into an unsuspecting tennis team member's locker early one morning, Pam Brewer and Lisa Lanham adorn it with food and decoration.

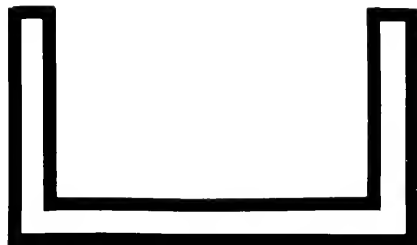

Glass doors provide excellent mirrors for the varsity cheerleaders as they strive for perfection of one of their pom-pom routines.

Plans to decorate players' bedrooms and lockers and to make signs and cookies originate at School Spirit Committees meetings like this one.

The human body from "A-Z" is studied very thoroughly say students enrolled in the medical auxiliary at the Career Center. Students work in labs and simulate a hospital, taking turns acting as patient and doctor. Many field trips were taken throughout the year to visit hospitals, laboratories, and other health centers.

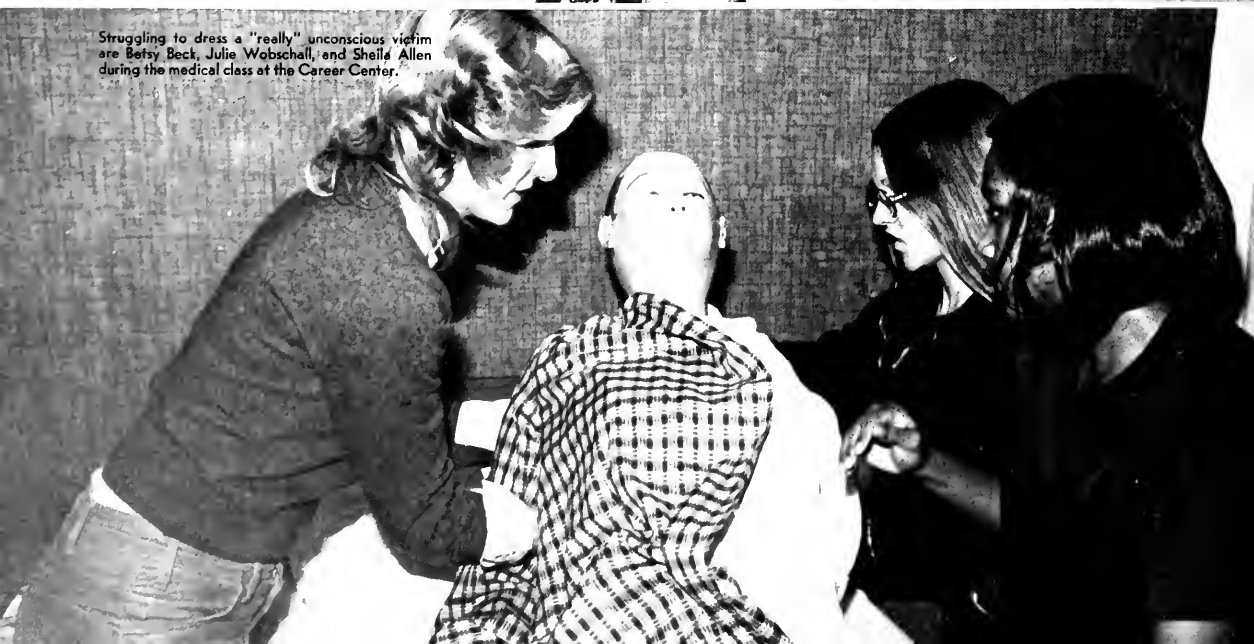

If you are interested in a field of dentistry, then the J. E. Light Career Center has a course for you in dental assisting. Beside classroom studies, this class gives you a chance to work with dentists and learn from your experiences with them. In the spring the class goes to the I. U. Dental School and Riley and Long hospitals to work in the clinics there.

By "word of mouth" these are some of the dental projects worked on by students enrolled in the dental laboratory.

Perhaps future dentists Dave Keck, Monte Hendrickson, and Matt Cooper get in practice constructing bridges.

Struggling to dress a "really" unconscious victim are Betsy Beck, Julie Wobschall, and Sheila Allen during the medical class at the Career Center.

Patient Kim Hunter does not seem at all worried about being checked by her doctor, Jody Jordan.

Here's Jaws. Career Center dental laboratory style, that is, as Lula Wesley, Ernest McCain, and Martin Simpson make dentures for their class.

As she constructs a crown, Dane Powers sometimes feels that her dental class gets to be a "real grind."

EXIT-- STAGE RIGHT

Stage Crew member John Towle does his part in helping build one of the many sets needed for just one show.

All sets have to be taken down to make room for new ones, these by Stage Crew members Dave Seidel, Todd Gleason and Mary Fend.

Ladders may be dangerous to your health but not to Stage Crew member Sheila Bosworth with David Alder's assistance.

Every aspect of a set has to be perfect, as Stage Crew members and Mr. Shallenburg know as they gather knowledge about this one.

Have you ever built a set, painted scenery, operated a spotlight, or worked sound effects? These are everyday occurrences for Stage Crew members. Led by President Mike Miles they ran all the backstage activities needed to present a first-rate show.

Imagine yourself presenting a play while costuming and applying make-up to fellow actors. Repertory Theater members did just that. Rep members selected scripts and presented them throughout central Indiana.

Thespian Troop 1851, headed by Betsy Manifold, continued their participation in NC productions. New members were initiated into Thespians after earning the minimum requirement of ten points.

Members of Stage Crew, Repertory Theater and Thespians not only produce but also present many plays and productions during the school year.

THE BIRDS AND THE BEES

The dance step of Carina Tolge has to be practiced to perfection for Beauty and the Lonely Beast.

Sisterly love doesn't seem to exist between Carina Tolge, Beauty, and Clare Henkel, Agnes, in the children's play.

All he needed was a little help from the birds and the bees, known as love, and the beast would return to a prince. The children's play Beauty and the Lonely Beast, featured Carina Tolge as Beauty with Bill Warner as the beast and Larry Nelson as the prince. Clare Henkel and Jeane Walker portrayed Beauty's sisters, Agnes and Sue. Scott Dunham was cast as their father, Mr. Merryweather.

In the winter play, To Kill a Mockingbird, Ross Glazier portrayed Atticus Finch, a widower in a prejudiced town in the deep south. His daughter Jean Louise (Scout), was played by Teri Levin, as a child, and Linda Segall as an adult. John Hamilton portrayed his son Jem.

Father and daughter, Ross Glazier and Teri Levin practice their lines for To Kill a Mockingbird.

Rehearsals take up much of Teri Levin and John Hamilton's time as the performances of the winter play draw near.

With an audience of Clare Henkel and Scott Dunham, as Carina Tolge's father, and Carina Tolge dance in the children's play.

The fifties hit everywhere, even heaven, as super jocks Jeff Dugdale, Fritz Lay, and Tracy Howe perform in "Heaven Forbid."

The Last Peanut Heaven

The dance line for "No Name City" rehearses their part in "The Last Resort."

He sold his soul to the devil, went to heaven, then a circus. Naturally "he" wasn't the same person, but the three acts of Junior Spectacular '77 featured those themes.

"Heaven Forbid" was about a man who went to heaven during the 50's and found what he didn't expect. Trying to escape his nagging wife, another man unknowingly sold his soul to the devil in "The Last Resort." "Peanuts, Popcorn, and Crackerjacks" showed what life in a circus is really like.

Life in a circus is fun as this part of the cast of "Peanuts, Popcorn, and Crackerjacks" knows.

MAN IN THE MOON ?

"You coax the blues right out of the horn, Mame." The popular song "Mame" along with "Bosom Buddies" and "Open A New Window" highlighted the musical production Mame. Set in the 20's and 30's, Mame featured Cleanne Reynolds in the title role. Also starring were Chuck Owens as her husband, Colonel Burnside, and Nancy Wagner as her friend, Vera. Her son, Patrick, was portrayed by Kevin Henderson, as a boy, and Larry Nelson, as an adult.

The love of a boy and girl in a Smoky Mountain community and the superstitious townspeople's resentment was the theme of the fall play Darl of the Moon. Ann Norton starred as Barbara Allen, and John Tindall portrayed John the Witch Boy.

Both the drama and music departments took two Broadway hits and made them two local hits.

Everyone's invited to one of Mame's many parties where laughter and merriment abound.

With the blare of a trumpet, Cleanne Reynolds as Mame enters one of the numerous party scenes in the musical production.

Rehearsals can be long and trying but they're necessary. These cast members practice their lines for the fall play, Dark of the Moon.

The morning after proves too much for Nancy Wagner as she enters Cleanne Reynolds' bedroom in the spring production, Mame.

Cleanne Reynolds and Nancy Wagner rehearse "Bosom Buddies" and the accompanying dance routine in the spring musical.

BUSING AT NC?

You'll never forget a bus trip with the Marching Panthers. The largest band in the school consists of members from Symphonic Wind Ensemble and Concert Band. Beginning two weeks before school and ending the first week in November, Band Director Sam Rhinesmith and Assistant Director Doug Wagner present a relaxed yet working atmosphere.

Wind Ensemble is the top concert band. At regional band contests, they have practically made a habit of returning with a first division rating.

Many promising musicians make up the Concert Band. Intermediate Band works on precision for the future. Playing for basketball games, Pep Band consists of any member of any band.

Many people don't understand Stage Band. However, a member helpfully submitted the following with directions to unscramble. Hopefully this will help clarify the purpose of Stage Band as a school institution.

Esom leepopyas hatt het merseps ni Egats Nabd era trevres. Hits si slafe. (ginpedned no sone noipt fo wive.) Ew nodd gub klofs, ew stuj twan ot eb telf nolae. TEL ROU LOPEEP OG!!

Proper fingering is the main concern of band members Larry Nelson and Sally Harris.

Half-time during the football game against Penn, is filled with the sound of the Marching Panthers.

The golden tones of the saxophone bubble forth with the help of band members Brian Rochester and John Froelich.

The half-time presentation at the Penn game featured the Marching Panthers.

Practice isn't all hard work as band members Todd Gleason, Dave Nelson, Dave Lucas and Dane Poteet know.

HUNGARIAN STRINGS

When walking down dark G-hall you might run into some Hungarian with a wild look in his eyes. Don't be afraid—it's just Dick Dennis, our orchestra director. If you don't, you'll find him in front of both the Symphonic and Concert Orchestras. This year in particular he has worked above and beyond the call of duty to make the NC Orchestra program one that is acclaimed throughout the state. Always receiving highest honors at contests, the orchestra members also enjoy playing at concerts, musicals and trips that bring their music to the public.

Demonstrations are given by Orchestra Director Dick Dennis to help Concert Orchestra members achieve perfection.

While practicing, orchestra members Caroline Bennett and Shelley Friedman smile for the photographer.

The fine art of cello playing is practiced by Sophomore Debbie Dick as she rehearses "From Sea to Shining Sea."

Many concerts are given by the orchestra each year; here they perform for the student body.

ii SEANADAH ATTIT SPREAD A DWARDS

Before a Descants show at the Airport Ramada Inn, Bobbie Branam, Mindy Baker, and Becky Branam exchange greetings.

Relaxing is all Julie Fansler, Lisa Cavalier, Louise Orr and Veronica Lewis have on their minds after a Descants show.

What do you think of when someone mentions Counterpoints or Descants? A top choir, right? Someone who misses a lot of classes in December for shows? Someone who comes in bleary-eyed after a 6:45 AM rehearsal? Well, you're right on all three counts.

A spirit of group achievement and friendship underlies many long hours and much hard work by Counterpoints' members. While individual voice excellence is encouraged, the key to success is an emphasis on vocal blending and group unity. Receiving many honors, Counterpoints performed at such places as the Columbia Club and Monument Circle.

With only four returning members, Descants also spent long hours working towards perfection in sound. From their first show on October first to the end of the year, they sang for public and private groups from the Riviera Club to Market Square Arena. Slumber parties and pitch-in dinners intermixed with shows to produce sensitivity and unity among Descant members.

Before their show, Counterpoints members Cindee Moore and Bill Eagleson go window shopping on Monument Circle.

The luxurious atmosphere of the Atkinson Hotel surrounds Descants Libby Willson, Paula Lurvey, and Tammy Becker as they await their cue to go on.

Traffic problems are non-existent to Counterpoints members on their way to a show.

SOMETHING SPECIAL

After mastering the song, Music Men concentrate on the accompanying dance routine.

With a blending of voices, Accents and Music Men become Varsity Singers for a Bicentennial Show.

Can you think of one thing Varsity Singers, Girls' Ensemble and Bell Choir have in common? It's music.

Accents, one half of Varsity Singers, spend many hours enjoying themselves while entertaining others. The forty girls in yellow dresses started and built lasting friendships while singing. The other half of Varsity Singers, Music Men, enjoyed the distinction of being the only all-male choir. Both groups were busy with Bicentennial shows.

Frequently known as the Ladies in Pink, Girls' Ensemble has a friendship circle before each performance which may partly account for the special closeness they are reputed to have. Their many performances include small intimate groups as well as large conventions and receptions.

The smallest group in the Music Department, Bell Choir, was also one of the closest and most unique. Each member learned to arrange music for the group's brass Schulererich handbells and mastered the art of playing bells and dancing simultaneously. Through the unusual sound of the bells, members tried to share something special with each of their many audiences.

"Tis the season to be jolly," Girls' Ensemble members celebrate the arrival of Christmas vacation.

The stage is filled with the ringing of bells as Bell Choir performs on Monument Circle at the lighting of "The World's Largest Christmas Tree."

Quickly catching on to new music, Accents Karla Austin, Terry Schlegel, and Karen Armor rehearse for the upcoming Holiday Sounds program in December.

Dance steps have to be learned, here by Crescendoe members Betsy Beck, Janice Lotts, Betsy Shanks and Mary Lynn McPhail.

New music is rehearsed by members of Treble Tones, the newest NC choir.

Over the Rainbow

"Kung," "Ensemble position" and "Copper Kettles carry comfort" are just a few things you might hear if you walk into the Treble Tones' room. The choir, formed this year and dressed in a rainbow of colors, sang songs like "Brian's Song," "Wonderful Thing to be Me" and "Singing a Happy Song." Along with the Christmas program the girls performed for clubs, retirement homes and churches.

Although Allegroes dresses are basic black, their spirit is anything but dull. The girls make up the smallest choir and consequently they are very close. They really get a kick out of singing and being together. Their shows incorporate a wide variety of songs geared for the pleasure of everyone.

From Beatles to Broadway Crescendoes perform a wide range of songs. The girls, dressed in ice-blue, sang for clubs, nursing homes and school productions. Good musician-ship, self-discipline and responsibility all add to make Crescendoes a fine music organization.

Singing and dancing simultaneously are these Crescendoes members.

Dance routines prove trying for Crescendoes members Beth Root, Ann Zintel and Julia Fleming.

Dance routines are perfected by Allegro members for Opus '75.

Soloing helps Northernaires member Jeff Kennedy with his singing while fellow members Bob Butters and Scott Moreland await their turns.

Sight reading takes up a large amount of ACappella members Cici Lemcke's and Jeanene Blastic's time as they learn the fine art of singing.

Practice helps Girls' Concert Choir members Vicki Broron and Cheryl Wilburn achieve singing perfection.

These Girls' Concert Choir members know singing takes practice, concentration, and hard work to achieve the goals of the training choir.

Scared of Heights?

Picture yourself at the top of a human Christmas tree formed by the three non-performing ensembles, Northernaires, ACappella and Girls' Concert Choirs.

The choirs devote their time to learning the basic aspects of vocal technique, choreography and working with others. They also prepare for departmental programs and the Fine Arts Festival.

The proper way of singing and breathing simultaneously is taught to these members of Northernaires, one of three training choirs.

Non-performing ACappella members strive to achieve the basic aspect of breathing and singing properly and membership in a performing choir.

During a close game with Arlington, Bill Tait shakes the pressure for an easy Ball Four.

Grit, determination and power strike fear into Jim Rust's opponents as he pitches a no-hitter at Shortridge.

Go to a baseball game and you will see fans, a few students, teachers, parents, and bicyclers passing by; all sitting on the bleachers watching the game intently. Enthusiasm for our team is growing quickly.

If per chance the game gets a bit dull, the outfielders begin chanting, "Hey batter, batter, batter!" Everyone gets riled up, and the game is alive. Realize, though, that it is not only the batter who makes baseball America's Number One sport. The catcher has to be alert, watching for flying bats. The pitcher is another key player. We were blessed with Jim Rust, who pitched a "no-hitter" at the Shortridge Sectionals. The fielders are vital, and of course, so are the coaches. To top it all off—are the batters! After all, someone has to hit 'em over the fence!

A long arm extended saves a possible home run during practice. Drills on catching fly balls are rehearsed, so there is no excuse for missing a fly, no matter what the odds.

HEY, BATTER, BATTER!

The reserves practice using a challenge ladder. Mark Gentry is listening to Blair Karsch as he and Coach Buckley discuss the day's matches.

59 straight dual meets won

Number one player Rich Vandish shows his devastating ground stroke in the State Finals.

It was a season of nothing but firsts. Well, almost nothing but firsts since the tennis team took the state runner-up trophy instead of the sought-after first place trophy. However, the season was encouraging to the players because of many other victories. They received much school backing, even being recognized at a pep session. Parents weren't the only fans backing the team; many students turned out to cheer the team on to a successful season. The players became a team instead of a group of players.

RUNNER-UP FALL '74 & '75

"Rocketman" Tom Rogers proves his nickname with a powerful serve.

A strong forehand by Bill Bastian scores another point for him and doubles partner Tom Hall in the Anderson match.

'We're Number One!'

So close, yet so far away! For Stacey Smith that's another stroke to add to her score. The putt was perfect, but the ball rolled a few inches short of the hole.

GIRLS' GOLF—FRONT ROW: Stacey Smith, and Kristy Williams; BACK ROW: Julie Hudson, Kyle O'Brien, Julie Selig and Coach Inskeep.

It's not every day you see a shot like this. During a hard practice round, Kristy Williams finds the club a little hard to hold over.

What's modern golf coming to? Using this bag to pick up all the balls Kyle O'Brien can putt in five minutes then getting it all set up without bending over once.

What can you say about the only girls' team to go undefeated for two straight years, including two state meets?

The sectionals caused a lot of excitement but not too much worrying for the girls. The tournament was held at Sycamore Springs, which happened to be the girls' favorite course. Only two weeks earlier, they had their best total on the same course. NC was predicted to win. The girls not only wanted to win but had two other goals besides the championship.

The first success was to have all the team members place 12 or better. The second goal was to have the top two individuals both from NC. First in sectionals went to Kyle O'Brien and second went to NC's "secret weapon" Kristy Williams. As was expected, the State meet also went to these "fabulous five." First place went to Kyle once again, along with the Mental Attitude award.

Mark Grosskopf receives another speeding ticket! Ah, but this one has positive results as he finishes strong in the Broad Ripple meet.

Looks like he ate his popsicle too fast; but actually Junior Scott Wolf is looking for some oxygen after winning a hard run meet at Lawrence.

OFF THE BEATEN PATH

A very hilly course at Kokomo Haworth gave Jeff St. Amand a tough time. After finishing the two and one half miles, he earned this deserved rest.

Although a beautiful day and only practice, Darrel Young runs full force on the course he chose for the day.

The energy crisis was a dead issue for Coach Willie's green country crew this year as his runners took third in the County and fourth in the Sectional before finishing ninth in the Regional.

The top four teams from the Panthers' tough Regional were in the state top ten, with state champ Southport leading the way.

Seniors Bob Deitch, Mark Grosskopf, Jerry Taylor, and Darrel Young represented North Central in the Sectional and Regional meets. Sophomore Bob Haslam rounded out the tournament team.

Young turned in the Panthers' best Regional run, finishing in 18th position.

Far into the 3rd quarter, QB Smith pitches the ball to halfback Al Darring, who runs it in for a TD against Arlington.

Our Panthers captured the AAA county title not held since 1969. Hard work and pride were key factors to success. After beating themselves in a fumble-filled game with Carmel, one has to ask where pride came from. Coach Pappas and staff gave the team the will to win.

The Panthers came back to win the next 5 games; including a grand victory over #2 ranked Lawrence Central. The team found it hard to fire up for underrated Warren Central. Although it was Homecoming, the Warriors did hit the war path.

Knocking off Southport gave the Panthers a county championship. What a backfield—Flash Pipkin, Al Darling, Bam Bam Pinner, with Smitty as QB. Bryan Pinner, honorable mention All-State, barely missed the 1,000 yard milestone.

Second team All-State honors were rewarded to Senior George Brown and Junior Mike Gilbert.

Defense holds 'em, Right on Dave Howard!

Touchdown! Scott Smith connects with Geoff Langston for a key pass that helped destroy a Ben Davis Homecoming.

With the score 14-12 against Southport, obviously the point after was a key factor in the victory. The defense looks as Mark Highbaugh attempts the kick.

The bench often proves to be a good seat for the game. Alan Warnock may be watching his teammates out on the field but the other two are keeping their eyes on the photographer. John Wake is ready for the picture.

Looks good for Varsity next year. The B-team finished strong to end a respectable season with a 5-4 record. With several key sophomore "footballers" on Varsity, the Reserve squad worked hard to retain the Panthers' fearful image to opposing teams. After losing some close games in the beginning, Head Coach Dick Pritchard and Coach Mike Miley never lost their cool and kept the team's spirit alive. A revived defense led by Bob Walsmith kept a goose egg that was never cracked on the opponents' scoreboard for the final three games.

The pass dropped right into Hal Darring's awaiting arms with only one Broad Ripple man on his path.

Action on the field holds Coach Racine's attention while Coach Mock tells Dave Seagren what strategy to use.

A totally different atmosphere surrounds the field when the Reserves play. It's hard to picture it as the same field Varsity uses Friday nights.

A pep talk along with a review of the plays during halftime brings the boys back out of the locker room determined to score again.

Panther Hilton Hudson goes hungry for a rebound as remaining teammates protect his rights to the ball.

A shorter team than accustomed at NC struggled through an unrathful season. The Panthers not only lacked in size but also were short a couple of players for much of the season.

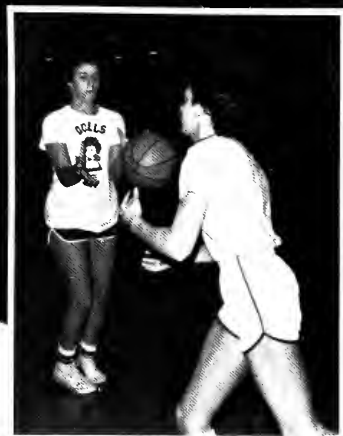

Dave Sherron led the Panthers in scoring with a better than 20 point average. Hilton Hudson was also a key figure on the squad, and Steve Clymer resurrected his round ball talents for tremendous support. Juniors Todd Ponder and Scott Garrison had an expected good season. Sophomore Andy Saxton really sparkled during Sectional play with the style of a real veteran.

Shooting for the stars, Curt Neff finds he has scored another two points. Combined efforts by all brought the Panthers a victory.

THAT'S THE WAY THE BALL
BOUNCES

What's the magic of the bolt? Just ask the team. That good luck piece was exchanged between two players each game and has been since late last season. Maybe that's not really why they won so many games. Could it be 7:30 A.M. practices or the warm-up exercises? Possibly they won because the other team had an off night. If you want to know the truth, it's because they love to play basketball and work hard as a team. With those two things, there should be a winning combination every time (or maybe it was the bolt).

HURRAY!

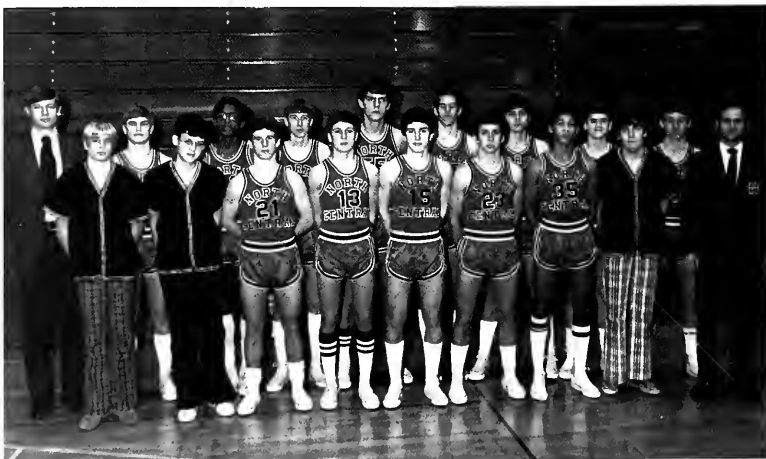

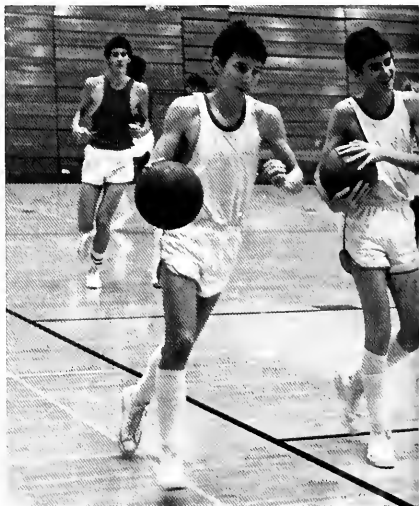

Under the guidance of Coaches Bruce Blomberg and Paul Johnson, NC's all-sophomore reserve basketball squad fought to a 9-11 record.

A first place trophy in a four-team tournament featuring Ben Davis, Lawrence, and Warren highlighted the Panthers campaign.

The Panthers lost tough games to Marion and Anderson but defeated city-rival Tech.

Coach Paul Johnson said "our full-court press and man-to-man defense were good and we had lots of depth in the guard position."

Practice isn't really all that bad! Mark Gentry, Brad Leaf and Tom Mitchell not only enjoy Friday nights but also afternoon practices.

On the way up for the easy shot, Darryl Henderson shoots as the referee watches for foul play.

At an attempt for the extra point, Bill Hall reaches for the hoop—and one more point is added to the scoreboard on the Panther's half.

Two Northwest players, determined to stop Greg Mueller from a basket, approach him from both sides.

Girls' swim team coach Mark Barnes was "very pleased and very proud" with his team's performance this year, as the girls finished with a perfect 11-0 record.

After outdistancing their nearest rival by 96 points in the Sectional, the Panthers finished fifth in the State finals, four positions better than last year.

Nine school records were bettered this year. Panther record-setters included Julie Cappello, Ellen Dean, Susie Pantzer, Nancy Wells, and the medley and freestyle relay teams.

With Mike Miles leading the way with two firsts, Powell's tankmen stroked their way to third at the State finals.

Chappel swam to third in 100 yd breast stroke with Miller in fifth. Bartlett took fourth in medley and the 200 yd medley team grabbed third place.

The team broke eight school records, posted a dual meet record of 13-0, captured both County and Sectional crowns, and extended the NC winning streak to 29-0.

Senior stroker Mike Miles stretches for his destiny—an easy victory but a hard landing.

Impartial timekeeper Cathy Nemec can't help but show a little enthusiasm as the boys' relay team pulls ahead to win.

Missy Wilson, the only Senior, works on one event, the bars. Coming to the team for her 1st year, she started from scratch and has done a nice job for NC. The Panthers made it through an undefeated season with the exception of the Columbus North Tourney where they received 2nd after Diana Dickey, an excellent gymnast, injured her knee and was not able to compete again this year. The girls emerged victors from the hardest sectional in the state, then topped all in state competition. Kay Pashos displayed her talent with a first on beam. Karin Kemper got second in All-Around while Ann O'Neill placed fifth on beam. Louise Quießer added her points to give the team a victory.

Relief spreads over Dave Lumley's face as the referee pronounces him winner.

Just one more push and heavyweight Dave Brown had his opponent's shoulders down. The ref gave the signal of a pin and one more match was added to Dave's undefeated season.

There's no way Bill Eagleson is going to let his New Albany "sit-down". Bill went on to win the round at the 8-way held at NC.

Energy expended, but what a great feeling as Brad Peglow struts off the mat after an early morning victory at the 8-way NC Tourney.

A tight headlock and there's not much hope for Arlington. Dave Oliver, protecting his broken nose with a face mask, has control of the situation.

The involvement of a caring, intense coach: Keith Farrand transmits silent instruction to his wrestling Panthers.

Far out! Or maybe I should say "weigh-in"! Coach Farrand provides for practice, new skills, techniques and meets but it's up to each wrestler, excluding Heavyweight Dave Brown, to watch his weight.

Before a meet it is mandatory to get on the scales for the refs and if you are so much as $\frac{1}{4}$ pound over, it's a forfeit. Yee Ford has been known to run up and down icy Butler Hill far into the night trying to lose a fatal pound or two by morning. No sweets and often no dinner until the season is over. Then SPLURGE! The team, with only four seniors received 1st in Sectional, continued sending grapplers to Regional, Semi-State and qualified Rick Bussell, 98 pound, to State where he earned third.

Two points in mind, Jim Bradford hangs on a little tighter. A single leg takedown may be just what is needed to earn him those points.

HOW TO

Captain Steve Smith rushes down the ice on a breakaway to score against Lawrence, going on to win 4-1!

One goal behind Lawrence and one period to catch up! Contemplating Coach Arbuckle's new strategy, the team went back on the ice ready to go.

Taking a Carmel opponent out of play with a hip check, Don Leonard fights for the puck.

Ready for the puck coming his way, Bryan Paul, alternate captain, heads down the ice toward the goal.

Looking for something to do on Saturday or Sunday around 5:00 p.m.? Why not check out hockey. Although not sponsored by NC's athletic department, the club consists of NC students. They take their business seriously and are known to have a pretty rowdy squad. Returning this year is a big hunk of last year's gang.

S U R V I V E

It's a fight to the finish as NC's Frank Dibortolo and a Marshall player as they both try for control of the ball.

Although not a varsity sport, NC students have turned to soccer. In their two years of competition, they have accomplished many goals. The crew finished 2nd in the city last year and hope to capture the city title this spring. If you haven't caught a part of the action yet, you should. Soccer is one of the fastest rising sports at NC.

Got it! That's the way Mike Sanich uses his head to hit the ball.

A little over-anxious to score, Dan Gall hastily kicks his opponent instead of the soccer ball.

The method Frank Dibortolo prefers is the "head to teammate" plan. Derec Earl is ready and waiting.

Looking for the ball? It's already been hit. In a chip shot which Rick Ellis is practicing before the Carmel meet, as soon as the club contacts the ball, the swing comes to a halt.

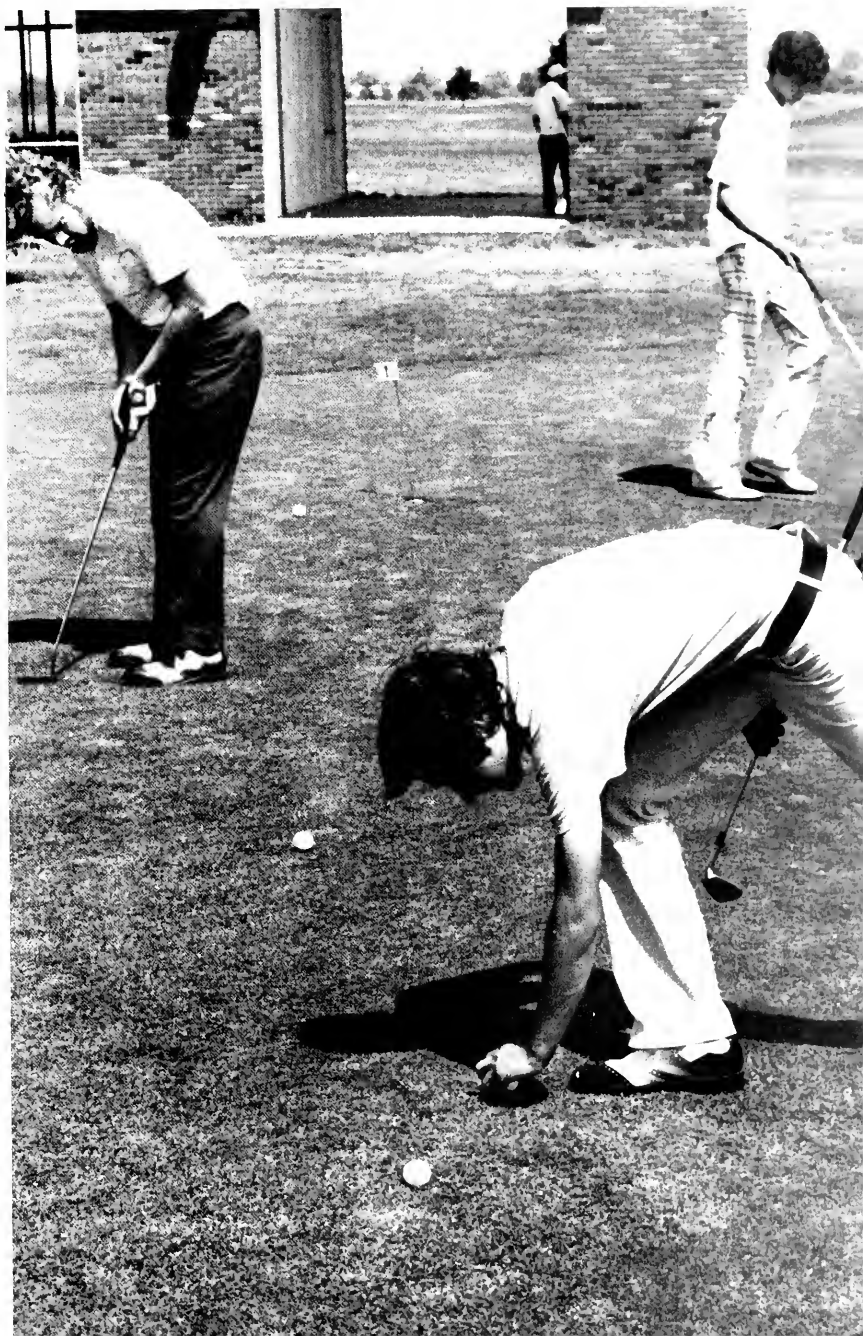

Eagles, birdies; what do you think we're running—a pet store? There's a lot more to golf than tees and greens. As the team continues to have successful seasons, more and more student golfers try for one of 12 spots on the team. Thirty-seven men tried to be titled an NC golfer. The tremendous trio, Dave Dyar, Bill Hamilton, and Tom Beam caused the other team to tremble and the other nine Panthers didn't help steady their nerves.

The lowest average went to Steve Toney, who will return for the 1975-76 season as will Lettermen Reed Hutchens and Mike Vea.

Often while the team waits for the tardy opponents, they gather around the putting green to practice a few last minute shots. Reed Hutchens quickly moves his tee and ball when he sees Brian Wampler aiming for him.

FORE!

Just clowning around are Nancy Glover, Mrs. Elliott, Cathy Hurst, and Suzanne Johnson. They think they're illustrating the typical tennis team, with stop watch, jump rope and style.

GIRLS' TENNIS—FRONT ROW: Beth Root, Sheila Elliot, Michele Milten, Emily Wade, and Sara Clark. BACK ROW: Lisa Cavalier, Jill Gordon, Carolyn Cook, and Lori Williams.

On "tippy-toes" with arms extended, Carolyn Cook and Michele Millikan practice again and again to improve their serves.

The hardest part of girls' tennis is the tryouts, held in the fall. Once you've made the team, you have practice daily but by then the team is working together and these dedicated players have a lot of fun.

Usually 40-50 girls go out for the team and using a challenge ladder the team slowly dwindles down to the 18 members, varsity and reserve.

Once the team gets together, they do everything possible to make tennis a blast. Last year's co-captains were Cathy Hurst and Suzanne Johnson. This year's will be Michele Milikan. Mrs. Elliot, the coach, leads all pep sessions the girls have before matches.

MINE... OOPS!

Quite a season for the girls' volleyball team, with lots of exciting adventures besides the scoreboard to show for it.

With a victory through sectionals, the girls had hoped for the Regional title too, only to be defeated in the final game against Crispus Attucks.

Long, dark bus rides home were romanticized journeys for our female athletes as they watched the moons glow from the rear of the bus.

"Bump, set, spike, kill" echoed through the minds of the players.

Practice is the only way to improve. Ruth Anne Greene spikes as Patty Hicks tries to block. Paula Hottinger is ready to help.

Carmel's attempt to spike is blocked by Marianne Light. NC won the match.

Jumping undefeated until state finals, Ruth Ann Greene easily clears the bar for another victory.

Did you happen to catch a glimpse of what whizzed by on the track lately? Well, it could have been Ruth Ann Greene getting a running start for her high jump. Or maybe it was Mr. McIntyre trying to boost the morale of his team. Then again, maybe it was Carol Paik just warming up. You never can tell. It's been known to happen that to get the girls to run faster, the boys practice with them and chase them around the track. Everyone is truly dedicated to their job.

One time, somebody decided that practice was getting boring, so she started thinking of a way to spice it up. What could be better than sneaking up behind someone and suddenly jerking her pants down around her knees? This caught on in a flash and soon everyone had been a victim. It wasn't even safe to get on the team bus for away games. But even though all of this goofing around was taking place, they still worked hard and came out with a winning season.

Girls' track team members Ruth Ann Greene and Paula Hottinger get in a good warm-up before a meet.

A handoff is a very hard maneuver in a relay. Bonnie Brammer and Julie Johnston show how it is done.

The only time Bobbie Branam, Paula Hottinger and Kim Hankins can get away with running in the halls is during track practice.

Looks close doesn't it? Derek Laing of North Central and the Pike sprinter are running stride for stride, but the race just started. When it comes to breaking the string at the finish, Derek Laing will do the honors. Derek also long jumps and received first in the state track meet.

Eight out of nine isn't bad. Neither is second in the state. But for North Central's varsity track team it was just another average season, as the Panthers won their eighth county title in nine years and finished their campaign with a second place showing in the state meet.

The Panthers' dual meet record was marred by only one defeat, and a large portion of the record book was rewritten, with many records being erased before the ink had time to dry.

New records were achieved by Bob Berry and Paul Payne in the high jump, Frank Rohm in the shotput, Kevin Crail in the polevault, Derek Laing in the 100 yard dash, and Don Baker in the mile run.

Remember hearing the name of Kevin Crail? He's NC's pole-vaulter. Because of a rainy Saturday for the state track meet, his event was one of a few postponed until Monday. With pressure mounting, Kevin pole-vaulted and NC remained in second.

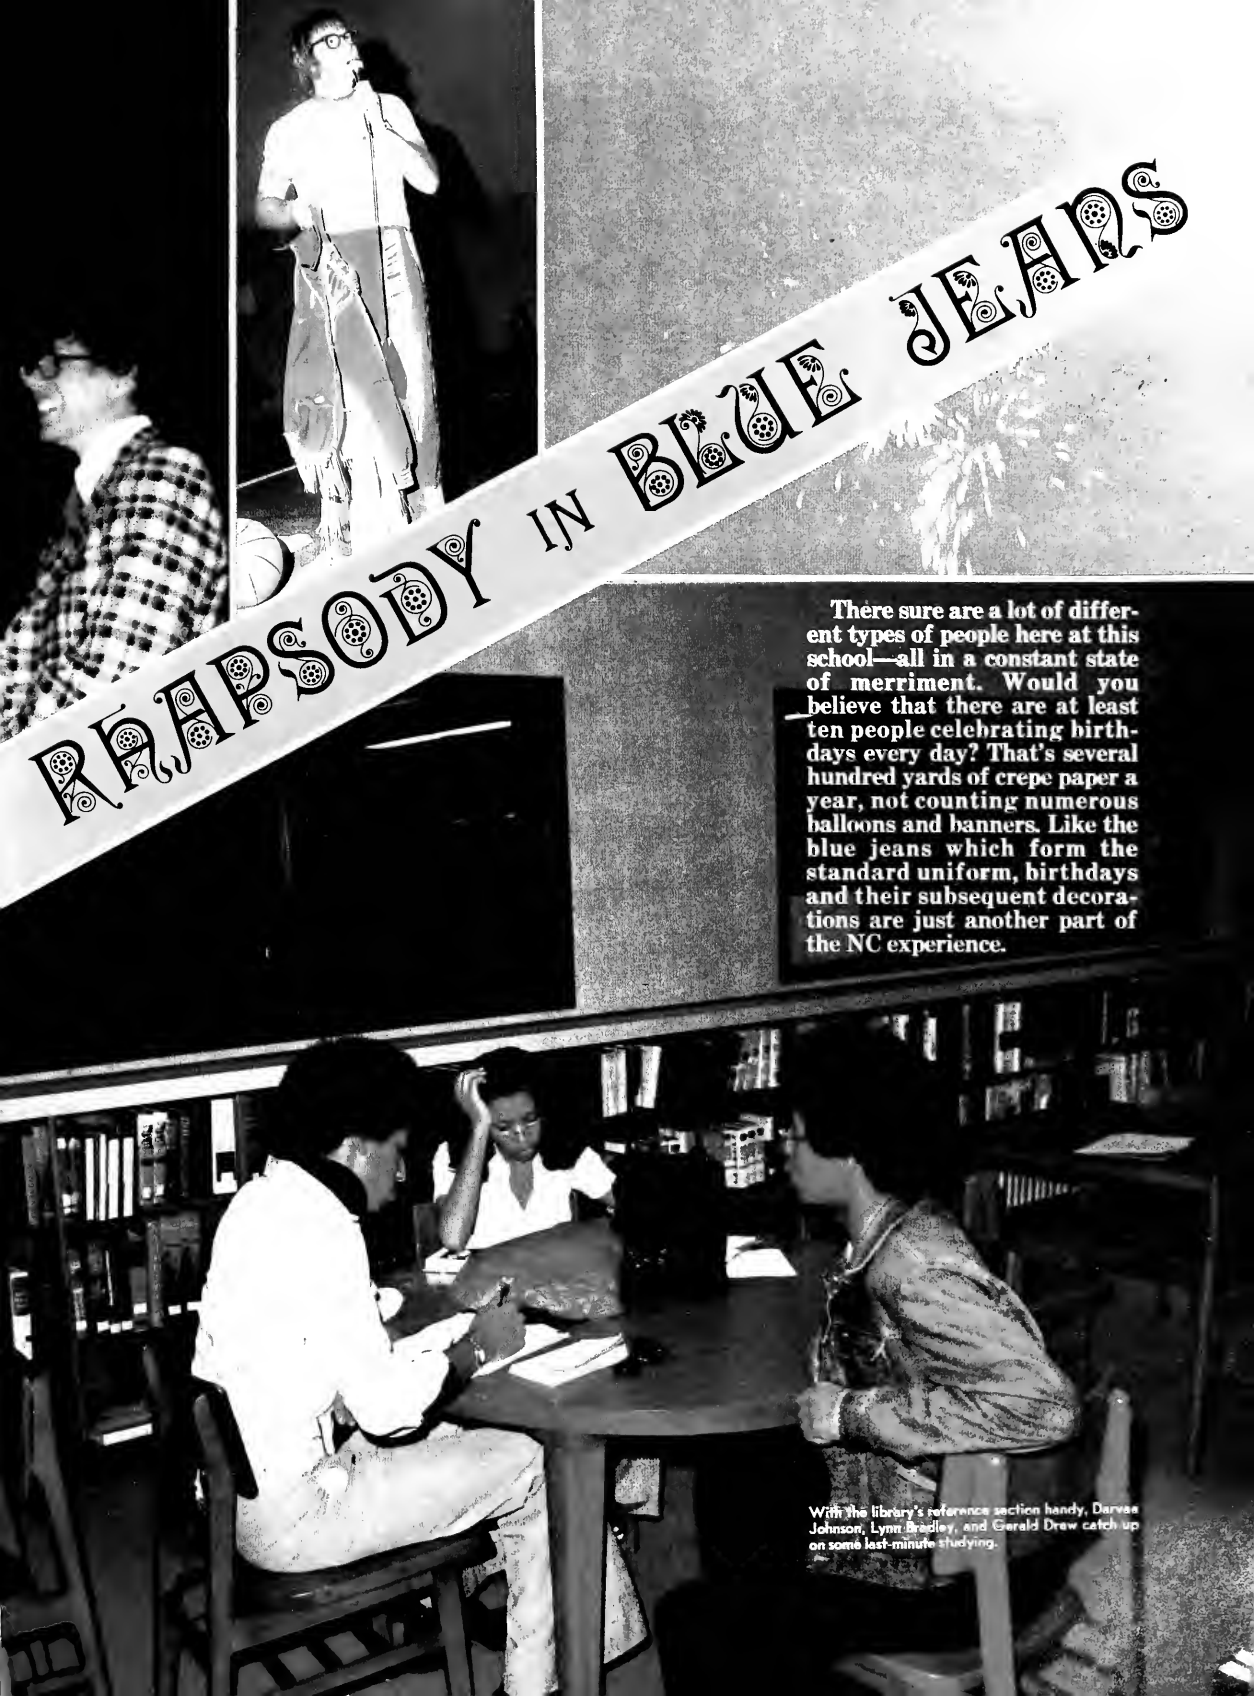

A popular guest, tennis ace Bobby Riggs visited the school over the summer to help promote the tennis program.

Smiling to keep the tears back, Homecoming Queen Suzy Bell joyfully hugs Sun Hamme after receiving her flowers. Joan Kennedy, 1974 Queen, looks on.

THE NO EXPERIENCE

RAPSONDY IN BLUE JEANS

There sure are a lot of different types of people here at this school—all in a constant state of merriment. Would you believe that there are at least ten people celebrating birthdays every day? That's several hundred yards of crepe paper a year, not counting numerous balloons and banners. Like the blue jeans which form the standard uniform, birthdays and their subsequent decorations are just another part of the NC experience.

With the library's reference section handy, Darvese Johnson, Lynn Bradley, and Gerald Drew catch up on some last-minute studying.

LEMMIE

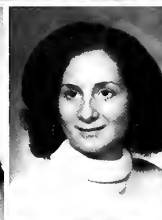

GO!

"I have to get out of this place!" This is a common lament of seniors with acute cases of Senioritis. This not-so-dreaded disease strikes without warning, usually after first semester finals, although cases have been reported after the first six weeks of school. Those stricken with this malady have an intense desire to leave NC and find out "where it's at." Many plan to go to college to do this. They look forward to taking a breather from the familiar homework, partying, and learning. Yet many decide not to go on at all.

Campus life means having the time between classes to enjoy the surroundings and talk with friends like Dave Smith and Janet Sievert.

A bike can be an asset on a large campus like I.U.'s. John Marvel, Dave Watts, and Elliot Schankerman "take ten" between classes.

HIGH SCHOOL BANNER YEAR!

1976 This is a year that we'll tell our grandchildren about. And when we think back, we'll have lots to remember. High School is an unforgettable experience in 1976 not quite sure, but from a distance it seems to

The woes of a South Paw

Lefties are a group all to themselves. They're special even though they're in minority under the right-handed people. From the beginning, they've had to learn everything backwards such as using scissors, writing in spiral notebooks, and tying shoes.

So all you lefties who are discouraged from this right-hand-oriented world remember: "Lefties stick together!"

WALKING BILLBOARDS

Watch out! Your clothes are revealing the most intimate aspects of your personality. That's right, T-shirts have lost the "60's" greaser's image and are popular school attire. People have converted T-shirts into walking billboards. They express favorite political viewpoints, movies, movie stars, and rock groups. Many school groups such as Sam's Marching Panthers and the Calculus classes let themselves be known by their T-shirts.

Where the Ducks Are

What could be more enjoyable than spending a day in Broad Ripple? There are so many shops to see that most of your time would be spent there. Karma Records and Door-mouse are among the many shops to see.

Besides shopping, there is also room for cycling and walking along the canal where the many ducks live.

Red, Black or White?

No matter what color, black, white, or Indian, we are all created equal.

There are so many races at our school that you are bound to meet someone new each day. Students from far away countries and kids from around the block should be considered equals no matter what color.

What's In A Mall?

What's in a mall? Jobs, people and the best of the treasures we buy are there.

Most everyone goes to a shopping center at least once a week, whether it be Castleton, Glendale or Lafayette Square. Some of us go for a job, if we can get one, but most of us go for the necessities of life—clothes.

After the movies on a Friday night, many students go to Dunkin' Donuts for warming refreshments.

Ancient though it may be, this movie theater is probably more artistic than the ones many students frequent.

Half time at the movies is much warmer and more delicious than half time at a NC football game.

HELP JAWS!

Attack after attack seemed to be the entire movie, so "they" said. Everyone warned me not to see the movie Jaws, but did I listen? No! Each time I heard "You'd be a fool to see Jaws before you go to Florida," I only became more determined to see it. The last straw presented itself in the form of a one dollar bet, which included seeing the movie the night before I left.

Standing in line, I pondered the notion to dismiss the whole idea. Just as I decided I didn't need the dumb ol' dollar anyway, I heard an echo of "How many please?" The tone of the ticket teller irked me just enough to say "ONE, please!"

I strolled inside the theater, feeling slightly cocky as others backed away from the line after reading the advertisement, pictures included. Taking my seat, I told myself repeatedly, "Now remember, it's just some man-made plastic shark that works like a puppet." The curtain opened.

The first scene startled me in such a fashion that immediately I grabbed for both arm rests, though rightfully only one belonged to me. I never let go until all the lights flicked on again after most people had left. (Well, I did let go once—to cover my eyes!).

That night, I didn't sleep. I was too scared to put my feet on the floor, so I just lay there in bed with all the lights on.

The next day I spent in Florida. It was a super day—blue sky, blue water, hot sand, zillions of shells, a strong breeze, and no swimmers. Sure, lots of people were around, wading in the shallow puddles of ocean, but I didn't notice anyone drifting about on a raft or swimming far from shore. I guess Jaws had everyone scared!

This famous quote comes from the one and only Euell Gibbins, the cranberry eater.

As most of you have seen, natural foods are the "in thing." There's earth bread to natural drinks on the counters in the stores. There are even natural food stores in shopping centers.

America is surely going to be the most healthiest and natural country around.

Smaller than an ocean but the next best thing are the many waterfronts here in Indy.

Since Indy lies in the Midwest, our lakes are usually icy cold all year round. Wawasee, Geist and Monroe are the best crowd pleasers. Sailing, skiing and general putting around are the familiar sights of summer recreations.

Be Patient -You'll Grow

Touch me easy! A student examines a plant during his botany class soon to find out that he shouldn't touch it.

Happiness is a healthy plant. Plenty of light, water, and fresh air is my diet.

Admit it, now, how many of you really talk to your plants? That's what I thought. Caring for house plants is a growing hobby among students, and some go to extreme lengths to insure bushy, green foliage. The well-known "fact" that a happy plant is a healthy plant encourages plant "parents" to spoon-feed hungry plants, play "Wildwood Weed," a plant favorite, haul water from Eagle Creek, and, of course, to gently croon "Be patient, you'll grow!" to adolescent plants.

SOUL

Platforms, high-brimmed hats, and super-flared pants are a part of the style of most black students. To be different, blacks have abandoned traditional T-shirts and jeans and have created a style all their own. Corn-rowing and other hair styles have also become popular. "Soul fashions" are a way of life for many.

Go H₂O

How can two gases form to become a liquid? Nobody but a chemist knows the answer. Water is the most important necessity at school. You can get out of classes for a drink or even be refreshed by a over-powered fountain. Water is not only used as a drink but can also beautify campus grounds.

Fidgety

Fingers

Rumbly fingers, twiddly thumbs and chewy pen caps are attacks of nervousness. Many of these attacks are triggered by pop quizzes, tests you forgot to study for, or that most important speech you have to give for the benefit of getting an "A." Other attacks might consist of sweaty palms, a jittery voice, or that just plain ol' dull feeling in the bottom of your stomach.

Although there's no cure for these nervous tics, you just have to let them slide right by like water off a duck's feathers.

Wouldn't you hate to have to walk all the way from behind the tennis courts to school in this kind of rain?

Rain can affect your day at school. It can totally ruin your day, especially if every other class you have is in the Career Center. The rain gets your folders all soggy, and it makes the ink run the words together on your homework papers. If you curled your hair that morning, you've got the droops all day. School would be even more boring if the sun shined everyday. "Variety is the spice of life."

What's that? Many students haven't seen half the display cases here at school. The main reason for not noticing them is that they aren't attention getters. Most displays give you information you should know. They're a very good way to learn. You never know there might be one about you someday. So next time you see a display case take a look.

"Freeze, everybody! Act normal."
 "What's normal about standing in a broom closet?"
 "Shush! There's a teacher coming this way . . . he'll hear you."
 "Okay, he's gone. We've got to move fast. Go out these doors."
 "Run! Quick, get in the car."
 "It's locked! Who's got the key? Open it."
 "Get in! Start the car. Go, go, go!"
 "Listen, if I go faster than 60 in the parking lot, it'll draw attention to ourselves."
 "You're right. Go slow, but hurry!"
 "Great, we made it off the lot without being arrested or getting in a wreck."
 "Calm down, I've been driving for 2½ months. Now, where are we going?"
 "Well, there's McDonald's, Burger Chef, Wendy's, Sizzler, or Steak 'n Shake. What do you guys think?"
 "We went to Burger Chef yesterday, so let's go to McDonald's today."
 "Yeah! Let's eat!"

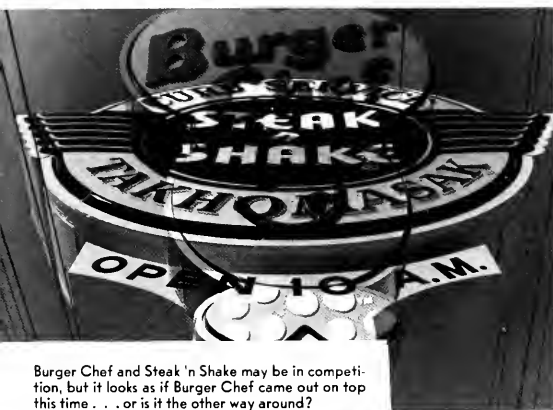

The Nora fast food joints become familiar sights to the lunch crowd searching for something other than tenderloin sandwiches and mashed potatoes.

The most serious cases of the after-school munchies are sometimes cured by a quick stop at a nearby McDonald's.

Extra thick chocolate shakes (with whipped cream and a cherry, even) are a dieter's folly.

Burger Chef and Steak 'n Shake may be in competition, but it looks as if Burger Chef came out on top this time . . . or is it the other way around?

The "golden arches" offer a place of refuge for the homework-stricken, test-weary student.

STYLE IT

Long or short, curly or straight, the hair style, reflects the individual's personality.

It's the same old story—girls with long hair got it cut, girls with straight hair wanted it curly, and those with curly hair wanted it straight. But styles for boys started out long then gradually got shorter with the style.

Streaked, cut, curled, frosted, wrapped, bleached, trimmed, pulled, tugged, blown-dry, yes hair went through a lot this year.

The long and the short of it—those are the styles of hair, that is!

Not all of us are lucky enough to have a full head of hair.

These boys support the curly look in hair styles for men today.

These happy fellows support the new afro style for hair.

Some people choose to sport caps and scarves instead of their natural do's.

INDIANAPOLIS, LOLLI-

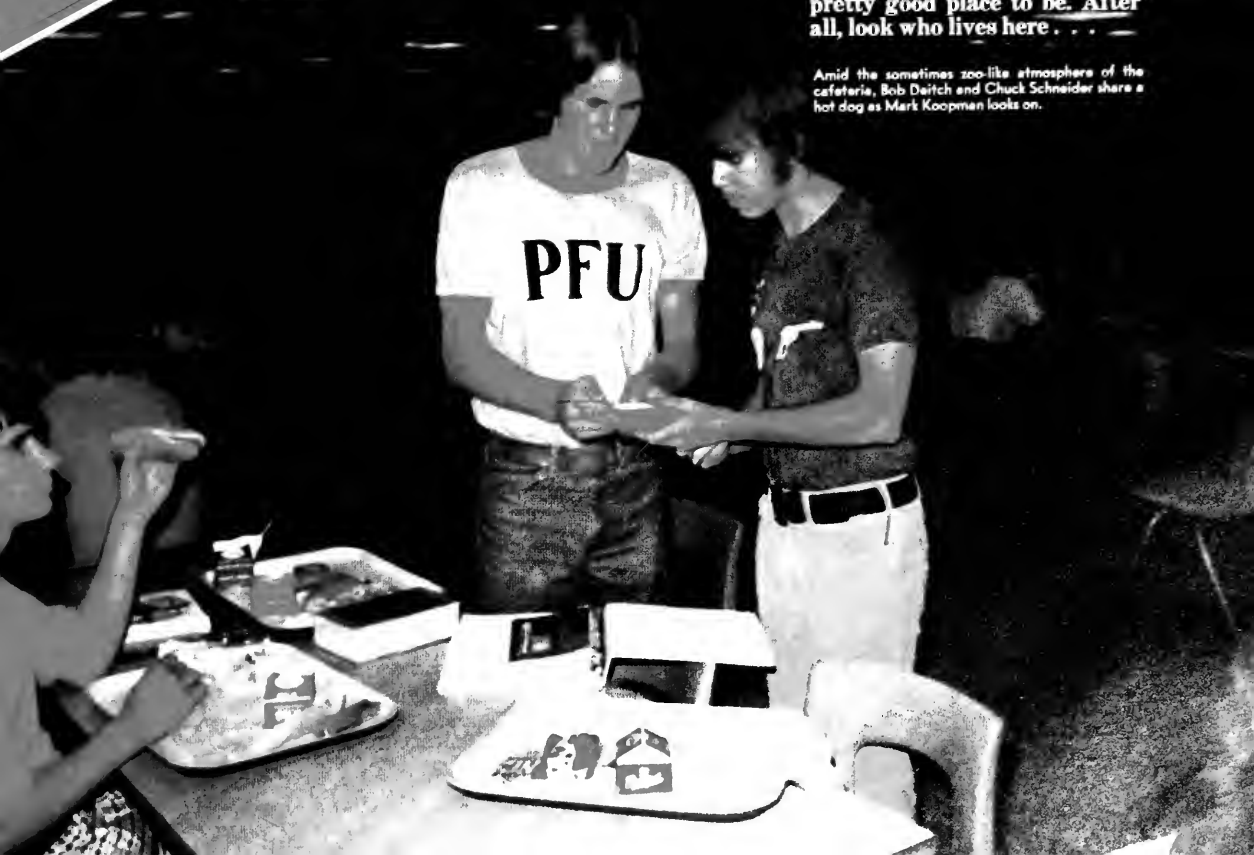

POPS. 60 YEARS OF NC

A quick trip aboard "The Good Ship Lollipop" is only as far away as the Castleton Farrel's.

Fireworks sponsored by local merchants added much excitement to fall football games.

There are a lot of traditions floating around this city of ours. The ducks in the Broad Ripple canal, the "world's largest Christmas tree," North Central High School, "the greatest spectacle in automobile racing," and yes, even lollipops, all bring to mind just one unique city. Indianapolis is a pretty good place to be. After all, look who lives here . . .

What's J.R.O.T.C. all about?

Well for one thing, it's Marksmanship. Anyone interested in shooting would enjoy one of the programs offered. It's not hard to get on a rifle or pistol team. Qualifications are held every year in the R.O.T.C. classes. You can try for Army Expert, Sharpshooter, or Marksman badges.

If you enjoy competition, this is your thing. National Rifle Association awards are offered Sharpshooter all the way up to Distinguished Expert. Our team of 15 Varsity, Reserve, and Junior Reserve compete with other schools and have a long record of victories. An Intramural Rifle League of 40 people is also included in the program. So join and check it out!

COLOPHON: who-dun-it

The 1976 Northerner was printed and composed by News-photo Publishing Co. of San Angelo, Texas, with the patient assistance of Indiana Representative Dick Kennard. Body copy is set in 12-point Century Bold. Scoreboards are set in 10-point Vogue Bold, and all other captions and folios are 8-point Vogue Bold. All headlines are hand-set using Formatt, Chartpak, and Mecanorma letterings. 2450 copies, 280 pages each were run and assembled in Smyth sewn-in 16-page signatures. Hand-set endsheets are printed in Super Blue on 65 lb. white index stock. Original cover design by Ann Bosso '76, silk-screened in white on blue shoe-grain leatherette bookcloth. Senior and underclass photography by Chase Studio. All other pictures by student photographers.

The Northerner staff would like to extend their thanks to the following individuals who contributed to this book: Mark Lea, Doug Blake, Ann Sofios, Ann Bosso, Parker Lanier, Walter Underwood, Lori Miller, Mary Richards, and Lynn Levy, for providing pictures to supplement those of staff photographers; Mrs. Carol Brown, for providing background information, slides, and pictures of the dedication and construction of North Central; Carina Tolge, Evonne Vidovic, Lawrence Levy, Bob Lee, Diana Webster, Joan Bedwell Pagoti, Terry Mathews Feezle, and Stephen Paul for writing of their experiences here; Mr. Carter of the Career Center Print Shop for providing the MSDWT logo; Bill Roman for miscellaneous copy-writing; Ann Sofios for an expert proofing eye; all faculty members and students for their cooperation in a variety of ways, especially Mr. William Lord and the Stage Crew for help with fine arts forms; and last, but not least, the entire wonderful staff of the Ball State University Summer Journalism Workshops, especially including Col. Charles Sevedge, Mr. Joseph Click, Mr. Randy Stano, "Doc" Chandler, and Mr. Larry Kemp, who tirelessly put up with nine NC workshopppers for an entire week.

Somebody at a workshop once told me that "editors don't bite nails or tear out hair." They were wrong on both accounts. Being a yearbook editor does spell panic, but luckily it means much more-like learning how to carry a cropper home in the school bus; becoming a "Rod's Rambunctious Roller," walking all over Muncie, IN looking for non-existent lemons; coping with photographers if you are an editor, and coping with editors if you are a photographer; spending the night on Robin's living room floor at the Yrbk. slumber party; memorizing the yearbook staff motto: "the staff that sleeps together keeps together;" working with the one and only Dor Droc (alias Rod Cord) whose financial wizardry makes this book possible; getting laughed at when you cry that you left your dummies at school over the weekend; learning to like cold pizza; knowing what TGATBS means; being inspired by the great staff of the Ball State Journalism Workshops; and LOVING IT ALL!

"It has been over ten years since I last walked through the doors of NCHS. Yet I still can remember—making friendships (that still exist)—the smell of newness that pervaded the new building—having Algebra class interrupted on a rainy November Friday afternoon by an announcement that the President had been shot; learning of his death next period in study hall; and fighting back tears—being one of 969 names in the commencement program—indeed, my friends, those were the days."

Alumni in the study hall, students of the past study in the second floor and other rooms.

"Second semester of 1969 was interrupted with an extra free day—the teachers of the township staged a walkout over a contract disagreement."

Racial tension in the downtown area of Indianapolis meant a change of plans Grad Dance night. Instead of the formal, decorated affair at the Indiana Roof, couples dressed up to go to the Northview Student Center. The breakfast afterwards at Sherwood Club was great—made up for an anti-climatic dance."

Remember Mr. Webster? Here he's helping a '67 chemistry student with her experiment as the ninth period gets started. In those days everyone was dismissed at 3:30.

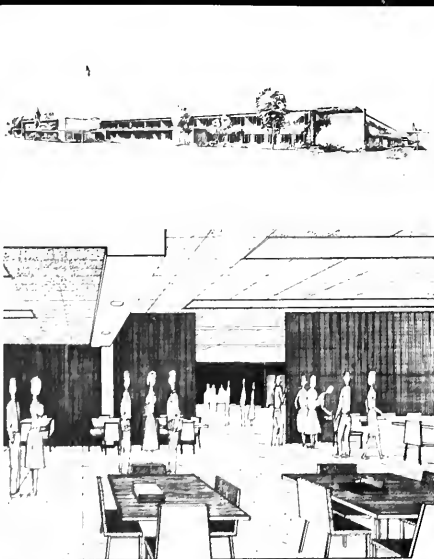

NC THEN

Fashions have changed a little since this Student Center picture was taken sometime back in the Sixties.

"I remember freezing in the cafeteria as I hurriedly ate my lunch—the annual Senior Slop when all the Seniors ended up cutting classes—the long practices for a much-enjoyed Spectacular—being part of a 'living Christmas tree' during the Christmas convocation—repeating over and over 'Two Bits' at all the pep sessions for Mr. Walker—and competing in the annual trike race."

—Diane Webster
Class of '73

"I remember that my North Central days were spent in the building now called Northview Junior High School. I remember the first days at school trying to remember my locker number, the combination, and how to get to class (without using the map) on time. I remember straight skirts, full skirts, gobs of petticoats, cinch belts and wide belts, and sweaters with fake collars."

INDY

Shaw talking outside, Julie Fleming, Ginna Gardner, Lise Cavalier, and Molly Rice ride to Colorado in their conditioned bus.

Getting "rowdy" is a must as Heidi Eckert, Merritt, and Jenny Busch wait for the crowd to arrive at the 500's slumber party.

Eager spectators line the side of the "track" during finals of the Homecoming wagon race.

Streaking along at 170 mph, cars like this one are a common sight to crowds at the track during the month of May.

Around here, the big celebration usually starts in May. The atmosphere surrounding the parade and the 500 itself gets the whole city excited. And naturally that spirit carries over into the next few weeks when school gets out.

Of course, the race isn't the only celebration around. On the fall scene, Homecoming adds a thrilling touch to ordinary classes. And summer lends itself easily to parties and vacations.

It's hard to talk about the Bicentennial in Indy because we weren't even a state in 1776. But we can reflect on traditions like the race and Homecoming which are nevertheless a part of our Hoosier heritage.

PATCHWORK OF PEOPLE

Some people think the Bicentennial is just a flag waving celebration. But we all have heritage in different ways, like the "Snowbound" quilt design (on this page) that has been passed through many generations. The same idea applies to us too, because NC is a patchwork of people even today.

Modern architecture of the new Keweenaw
Crossing is highlighted by the quadrate night shot.

The lights of the city in the background, cars streak by on I-465 at dusk.

Student studs Chuck Bates, Randy Davidson, Sir-dasto Jefferson, De Marcus Hazelwood, and Mike Russel show off during lunch in the cafeteria.

Feeding their faces, Juniors Nancy Elmer, Ashley, and Susie Stein finish off the last of the meal.

CELEBRATE COMING OF AGE

Although the wind is up and the sun is shining, these two sailors on Lake View are getting ready to abandon ship.

Twenty years is a long time. Two hundred years is even longer. But it has taken all that time to bring us to where we are—1976. Patriots and Panthers, Minutemen and Music Men, US and NC—they all stand behind us.

This coming of age isn't something to be taken lightly. But somewhere between where we've been and where we're going, we've got to pause just a moment to "smell the roses" and celebrate "76" and our COMING OF AGE.

Straight out of the Yvonne Vanehies and Dean Wainwright on a spring rider. Yvonne Vanehies is getting ready to abandon ship.
